Many Business Changes On Central Broadway

Maben & Walker Lease Hutton Building—
Their Building Bought by Maroon—Maroon
Building Sold to Altamari—Phelan Property
Bought by Burnes—Palisi to Erect Brick Building.

The coming summer will see a number of important business changes on central Broadway in the vicinity of the Central Post Office.

Maben & Walker, the Broadway druggists, have leased the Hutton building at No. 478 Broadway, now occupied on the ground floor by Frank Palisi as a fruit store, and will take possession on May 1.

The building now occupied by the drug store has been purchased by Doornik Maroon, who has a confectionery store at No. 480 Broadway, and he will occupy the drug store as a confectionery store as soon as it is vacated by Maben & Walker.

Mr. Maroon has sold his building at No. 480 Broadway to Michael Altamari of Gill street. It is understood that Arthur Olivet, who has a confectionery store at Broadway and O'Neil street, has leased it to the Grand Union & Pacific Tea Company, who will take possession later in the year. The fixtures in the Olivet store will be removed to the Maroon building where Mr. Olivet will continue the confectionery business. This is the building where he was established in business before erecting his present building at Broadway and O'Neil street.

Frank Palisi, who now has a fruit store in the Hutton building, will have to vacate before the first of May so that alterations may be made before the store is occupied by Maben & Walker.

Mr. Palisi, who owns the property on Broadway on which is located the Central lunch wagon, has had plans drawn for the erection of a two story brick building by Thoms P. Rice, the architect, on the site.

James A. Phelan has sold his property at No. 60 Broadway, adjoining the office building of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, to Peter A. Burnes, treasurer of the United Hudson Electric Company. Mr. Phelan has the right to vacate the property at any time within the next two years. The deal was consummated through the real estate office of W. Arthur Farrar.

The property at 60 Broadway has been in the possession of the Phelan family for the past sixty-nine years. Mr. Phelan, who is now 56 years old, was born in the building which he has just sold to Mr. Burnes. The grocery business that is carried on in the building is one of the oldest established grocery businesses in the city.

Mr. Burnes, it will be recalled, recently took over a number of properties on Broadway, adjoining the Phelan property, and also four houses on Cedar street, which he later sold to Harry Lazarus, who operates the Auditorium Theater. Mr. Lazarus has announced that he contemplates the erection of a modern theater on the properties he has purchased from Mr. Burnes. There will be several stories on Broadway, and a lobby leading into the theater. The stage entrance to the new theater will be located on Cedar street.

Two Orchestras For Masonic Ball

One of the big social events of the season will be the Masonic ball at the state armory on Wednesday evening, April 22, for the benefit of the Masonic temple fund. The ball is being held under the auspices of the Craftsmen's Club of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., and tickets may be obtained from any of the members. Two orchestras, Zucca's and the Colonial Serenaders, have been engaged to furnish music. There will be a concert from 8 to 9 o'clock and general dancing from 9 to 12 o'clock.

SEVERAL CASES BEFORE JUDGE SCHURCK IN POLICE COURT

Alfred Melbert and Dennis Costello, two young men, were arrested Wednesday evening at the Auditorium Theater by Special Officer Shadler, who charged them with disorderly conduct. This morning Judge Schurck placed both of the youths on probation for a period of three months.

John McDermott, arrested by Officer Paterson on a charge of public intoxication, pleaded not guilty and the hearing was adjourned for two days.

Robert Kelder, arrested by Officer Robert Hooper for public intoxication, informed Judge Schurck that he expected to be discharged with the warning that if he was sent to jail that period he would be sent to the Albany Penitentiary.

Fear Fate of Platform Bills

Republican Leaders Afraid Important Plank Measures Will Not Be Carried Out—Prohibition Enforcement and 48 Hour Bill Important Subjects.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, March 5.—Republican leaders of the legislature have reached the point where they are beginning to worry.

They are afraid they will not be able to put through measures in the legislature carrying out three important planks in the U. S. P. platform of last fall. In an effort to get things straightened out they have called in George K. Morris, Republican state chairman.

State-wide prohibition enforcement legislation and the 48 hour proposal are two of the more important subjects which have the leaders worrying. While the Republican platform did not specifically pledge the enactment of a dry law, the speakers in the campaign did. The 48 hour proposal, however, was endorsed in the platform.

Both the Republican and Democratic parties, in their platforms, endorsed the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution. Governor Smith and the Republican leaders of the legislature have reached an agreement, however, whereby the proposed amendment will be submitted to the voters before the lawmakers act.

There is no doubt the dry bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Jenks and Senator Wales, Republicans of Broome, will be passed in the assembly although the wetts made a surprising showing when the measure was advanced to the order of final passage. The drys insist they can pass the bill in the assembly and have at least a dozen votes to spare.

The fate of the dry bill in the upper house has the Republican leaders worrying. Four G. O. P. senators have signified their intention of voting against it. If they do, and all the Democrats vote in the negative the measure will be defeated by one vote.

When the legislature first convened it was generally taken for granted that a 48 hour bill would be passed by the Republicans because of the fact that it was endorsed in the platform. Now there is considerable doubt as to the success of such a bill.

NOTED INDIAN WORKER AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Service preparatory to the administration of the Lord's Supper will be held in the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church at 7:45 this evening. The Rev. J. M. Cornelison, of Pendleton, Oregon, will be the speaker at this service. Mr. Cornelison has for twenty-five years been doing a remarkable work among the Umatilla Indians. He translated into English their Indian grammar, written in Latin by a Catholic priest, and in five months preached to the people in their own tongue. He overcame suspicion and hostility, and in the course of time revolutionized the community's habits of living. A United States Indian commissioner, seeing his garden, said: "That's the biggest sermon you ever preached to these people."

ANNUAL DINNER OF PRUDENTIAL EMPLOYEES

The Boosters Club, the members being representatives and employees of the Prudential Insurance Company in this district, had their annual dinner Wednesday at 5:30 o'clock, at the Advance restaurant, Wall street. Thirty Prudential men partook of the menu which was one of the best. Alexander Speers, president of the club, introduced the Rev. Lucas Rote, pastor of the First Reformed Dutch Church, who gave a most interesting address on "Law Enforcement." After the dinner the Boosters Club marched in a body to the Knickerbocker where they enjoyed the moving pictures. Each member wore a red carnation as a contribution from Mrs. Alexander Speers.

Also Declares Extra Dividend

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, March 5.—Directors of the American Locomotive Company declared an extra dividend of $10 a share on the common stock and increased the rate of dividend on that stock from 4 to 8 per cent today. The extra dividend is payable in four quarterly installments of $2.50 each. The quarterly dividend rate on the common stock was boosted from 1 1/2 to 2 points.

Kellogg Takes Oath of Office

New Secretary of State Takes Up Work of Charles E. Hughes Who Goes to Bermuda for Vacation—Consults With President.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, March 5.—Frank B. Kellogg, formerly United States senator from Minnesota, and late ambassador to London, became secretary of state today.

Charles Evans Hughes retired to private life after four years at the helm of the department of state under the late President Harding and under President Coolidge.

The new secretary was sworn in by Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Pierce Butler, in the presence of a few close friends, members of the state department and the Minnesota delegation in Congress.

Simplicity marked the event. Within a few moments after Secretary Hughes entered the state department offices with Kellogg, he had transferred to him the responsibility for conducting American foreign affairs and walked out, without a care in the world, ready to sail for Bermuda for several weeks of quiet and rest before re-entering the practice of law in New York city.

Kellogg appeared nervous as he took the oath and his hand trembled while Justice Butler was speaking. As soon as Kellogg had been sworn in, Justice Butler shook hands and congratulated him. Then Mr. Hughes offered his congratulations.

Secretary Kellogg left immediately for his conference as secretary of state with President Coolidge.

Kellogg had a three quarter of an hour conference with President Coolidge.

"We discussed a lot of things," he said as he left the White House.

A. T. & T. Surplus Gains $17,128,094

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 5.—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company earned $107,619,362 last year after operating expenses and depreciation, Chairman H. B. Thayer announced in his annual report to stockholders. This is an increase of $12,229,444 over 1923. After paying dividends in the total amount of $70,918,227 and appropriating $3,000,000 for contingencies, the company carried over $17,128,094 to surplus.

There are 11,242,318 stations owned by the company and 4,664,243 connecting stations. There are 39,893,619 miles of wire, an increase over 1923 of 5,369,777 miles. About 67 per cent is in underground cable, 22 per cent in aerial cable and 11 per cent open wire.

The charges for the telephone service have, according to the report, on the average advanced less during the past ten years than wages or the prices of materials or the cost of living. This is equivalent to saying that measured in terms of wages or material prices or cost of living, the average charge for telephone service has been reduced.

Murdered Under Eyes of Police

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 5.—The body of Giuseppe Manestri, thirty years old, with a bullet wound in his head was found this morning in the middle of the street directly behind police headquarters. The discovery was made by Edward Grant, police lieutenant. The murder was evidently well planned. Police were unable to find any one who heard the shot fired, and believe the sound of the shooting was drowned out by the passing of a train. Manestri was shot from the rear. The bullet entered the back of his head, pierced his brain and came out under his left eye. In right hand pocket was found a fully loaded thirty-eight calibre revolver.

NAGY DISCHARGED ON PROMISE TO ABSTAIN

Stephen Nagy, arrested Tuesday night by Deputy Sheriff Ellsworth on a warrant obtained by his daughter charging him with disorderly conduct at East Kingston, was arraigned before Judge Webber at Flatbush, Wednesday. After hearing the evidence and inquiring in the matter Judge Webber discharged Nagy after a severe talk, obtaining a promise from the defendant to abstain from drinking. Nagy, who is a good worker and does not drink to excess as a rule, drew $250 from a bank and then got intoxicated. He had spent $10 and the remaining $140 was recovered. Thomas F. Coughlin appeared for Nagy at the hearing.

Senators Shocked Because Dawes Cuts Red Tape

His Suggestion to Amend Senate Rules Relating to Unlimited Debate Causes Stir—Deplores Lack of "Dignity" in Taking Oath Collectively Instead of in Groups.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, March 5.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes is in for a hot time in the exercise of his constitutional function of presiding over the senate.

Washington considered this certain today and looked forward to the fireworks with a good deal of pleasurable anticipation.

The unprecedented tradition shattering action of the new vice-president in figuratively spanking the senate within two minutes after he had taken the oath of office, caused a wave of resentment in that august body that extended to every part of the chamber. Not only the Democrats and insurgents are "sore," but administration senators as well.

Whatever be the ultimate result of Dawes's beginning, his friends gleefully observed today that at least the volatile general has shown that he does not intend to be submerged in the usual obscurity that falls to the lot of vice-presidents.

With flailing arms and stamping feet General Dawes told the senate his present rules are a disgrace and "unbecomingly of good government."

He had reference to those traditional and time honored rules which allow a minority a lot of time in expounding its views on pending problems. He served notice that as presiding officer he would work for the reform of those rules.

This threw a scare into every faction of the senate. The rights of the minority to be fully heard is a very sacred right in the senate, jealously guarded irrespective of which party is "in." Hence the uneasiness among Republicans as well as Democrats. The Republicans are in the saddle, but there are many who remember the eight long years under Wilson when they were "out."

General Dawes is a direct actionist in the conduct of governmental affairs. He believes that when the majority has decided upon something that is all there should be to it—it should be put over with "minimum of wasted effort and talk. The Senate is a "deliberative body"—it has been called the most "deliberative body" in the world—and it holds no such views.

General Dawes's attack on the Senate rules was not the only part of his first day's demeanor that caused some resentment in the chamber. If there is one thing in the world the Senate is jealous of it is its dignity. And the general completely shattered this by breaking up the decorous and time-honored ceremony of swearing in new senators and "herding them like sheep," as one sorrowfully expressed it, before the rostrum to take oath. He hastily adjourned the session and went outside to see the Coolidge ceremonies before a third of the senators had signed the register—another affront.

In that group of "new" senators were such veteran members as Senator Warren, who is starting his thirty-third year in the Senate. He is the dean of the Senate. There was also Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, the oldest Democratic member, with 24 years' service. There were Norris of Nebraska, Walsh of Montana, Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and others of 12 years' service.

"Clownish," "acrobatic," "ridiculous" and "disgraceful" were some of the milder terms used by Senators today in denouncing General Dawes's summary action in the tradition-honored chair. They used these terms in public comment. Privately their comment was much more emphatic.

Curtis Elected Floor Leader

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 5.—A harmony slate, headed by Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, as majority floor leader, was elected today at a Republican caucus in the senate.

Other officers named were Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, as assistant leader, and Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, as secretary of the conference.

The caucus also endorsed Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Republican, as president of the senate, and Senator Albert Cummins, Iowa, as president pro tempore. George Sanderson of Chicago as secretary, and David Barry, of Michigan, as sergeant-at-arms.

Woodlock Will Not Be Renamed

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 5.—The nomination of Thomas L. Woodlock of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., as a member of the interstate commerce commission which failed of confirmation by the Senate in the last Congress, will not be renewed by President Coolidge.

Woodlock is a Democrat, whose nomination was opposed by northern senators who claim the place should go to a southern man.

Hope Shrinks at Coolidge Address

France Had Expected President Would Mention Inter-allied Debts in Inaugural Address—Comment Expresses French Viewpoint.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Paris, March 5.—Disappointment was voiced in the French press today over the failure of President Coolidge to make mention of inter-allied debts in his address in the inauguration ceremonies in Washington yesterday.

For months Paris editorial writers had been buoying up the hopes of their readers for some reduction or a partial cancellation of the French debt owed to the United States. The writers had explained it was impossible for President Coolidge to help France on the debt question until the elections were over and the inauguration had taken place.

"We should meditate on President Coolidge's silence rather than on his words," the Gaulois commented today.

The Oeuvre was bitter in its comment. "Coolidge and Dawes took the inaugural oath on a Bible, for nothing is ever done in the United States without a sanctimonious, preachy trick," the newspaper said. "There is no inspiration in the Coolidge address. There is not a word on the question of international debts to satisfy the minds of listening crowds."

Should we say we expected anything else from Coolidge? No. The politicians in the United States are prisoners in their internal politics. The low birth rate of France makes it impossible to export any immigrants to America, consequently America demands payments to Germany because of the large German-American population. For the same reason, America will never claim the Italian debts because the Italian-American population won't let them.

"Coolidge and Dawes took the inaugural oath on a Bible, for nothing is ever done in the United States without a sanctimonious, preachy trick," the newspaper said. "There is no inspiration in the Coolidge address. There is not a word on the question of international debts to satisfy the minds of listening crowds."

Thinks Coolidge Puts Dollar First

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, March 5.—German prospects in America during the Coolidge administration appeared encouraging but leaving something to be desired, according to comment on the inauguration in the Hannoverscher Kurier today.

"The triumvirate" of Coolidge, Dawes and Kellogg marks a brighter though still not rosy outlook for Germany," the newspaper said. President Coolidge finds it is not easy to preserve peace in view of the war clouds on the Far Eastern horizon.

"However we appreciate his intentions to pacify the world. The League of Nations, as well as the world court, still seem like Utopia. Coolidge is unlikely to follow an anti-European policy, but will choose ways other than those proposed by 'entanglement politicians.' He firmly believes the dollar is mightier than the exchange of diplomatic notes in reaching world recovery."

"After the president concluded his speech," said Hale, "the president and Mrs. Coolidge, and the vice president and Mrs. Dawes left the stand and started down toward the cars. The vice president said to me: 'I must return to the Senate to preside, how do I get there?' I informed him that he was not to return to the Senate but was to go to the White House to review the parade. It was a misunderstanding on my part. If there is any blame attached to it, it is mine."

Troopers Capture Fleeing Inmates

Three Inmates Who Escaped From Napanoch Institution are Captured by State Troopers Near New Paltz Wednesday.

Three inmates who escaped from the Institution for Mental Delinquents at Napanoch last Monday, were captured near New Paltz Wednesday night and turned over to the prison authorities. The three men after escaping from the institution crossed the mountains near Mohawk and their trail was picked by state troopers, who followed the men until dusk Tuesday evening, when the three hid among the rocky cliffs and the chase was abandoned for the night. People in the vicinity were notified to keep a lookout for the men and Wednesday morning their trail was again taken up and followed through the woods and mountains.

When the troopers were notified of the location of the men near New Paltz they gave chase. Two of the prisoners were quickly overhauled and after a couple of shots had been fired they surrendered. The third member of the party, however, refused to stop and after a mile chase was overhauled. Twenty rounds of ammunition fired by the troopers failed to frighten the man and not until the troopers were close to him did he finally surrender.

Hale Relieves Dawes of Blame

Maine Senator Told Vice-President He Was Not to Return to Senate Chamber After Inaugural—Ashurst Explains His Criticism.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, March 5.—The smouldering resentment the senate feels over the "dressing down" it received at the hands of Vice-President Charles G. Dawes came to the surface today a few minutes after it met.

With General Dawes himself in the chair, Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, succeeded in getting into the record his opinion of General Dawes's action yesterday as "unusually and unbecomingly." Ashurst's criticism was directed, not at the speech of the vice-president in which he denounced senate rules, but at the general's action in interrupting the swearing in of new senators "to shoo" everyone out of the chamber for the Coolidge inauguration ceremonies.

Republican leaders succeeded in shutting off any extended criticism of Dawes by obtaining a recess until 2 p. m. In order to notify President Coolidge that the new senate is in session and ready for business. However, it may only be delayed a few days, among them Reed, Democrat, Missouri, endeavored to get the floor during the brief opening session.

Hale Explains. When the Senate convened at noon today, Senator Hale, Republican of Maine, and Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, both demanded recognition from the chair. After a moment's hesitation, Vice President Dawes recognized the Maine senator.

Hale said he had "noticed in the press certain criticisms" of the vice president for not returning to the senate yesterday after the conclusion of the Coolidge ceremonies, in order to preside. Hale said he took the blame for this, and wanted to explain to the Senate how it happened.

"After the president concluded his speech," said Hale, "the president and Mrs. Coolidge, and the vice president and Mrs. Dawes left the stand and started down toward the cars. The vice president said to me: 'I must return to the Senate to preside, how do I get there?' I informed him that he was not to return to the Senate but was to go to the White House to review the parade. It was a misunderstanding on my part. If there is any blame attached to it, it is mine."

Ashurst's Criticism. Senator Ashurst then obtained the floor.

"Mr. President," he said, "I saw in the press this morning certain criticisms attributed to me on the vice-president. I rise to a point of personal privilege to say there are certain parts of the vice-president's speech with which I am in accord. My criticism was directed at the unbecomingly and untimely interruption by the vice-president of the ceremony of the new senators taking the oath of office."

General Dawes stood erect behind his chair and said nothing.

Sensor Curtis, the Republican leader, then obtained a recess and the appointment of a committee consisting of himself and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, to inform the president that the new senate has organized and is ready for business.

WOMEN FARMERS.

It is not many years since the traveling American was shocked to see European women at work in the fields and any one in this country who allowed his women to work on the farm was a disgraced object of general indignation. But these are changed times. Now, according to the report of the Bureau of Vocational Information, more than a million women in the United States are engaged in farm work and 200,000 of these boss farms of their own. In these days of labor-saving machinery and decrease in grinding manual toil the American prejudice against women working out of doors, as well as over their stoves and washboards, has weakened. And other women besides farmers' wives and daughters are engaged in agricultural pursuits.

Today "farmerettes" include women from a variety of callings, such as teachers, nurses, librarians, who heard the call of the out-doors and decided to try their luck on the farm. This was inevitable, for the number of women in practically all the professions and trades formerly restricted to men has enormously increased. More and more women are preparing for and undertaking independent careers, but a large percentage of these still hear and heed a more ancient and more urgent call. The report of the Bureau of Vocational Employment speaks of women's "too frequent temporary attitudes toward business." After all, an independent life of single blessedness fails to satisfy, and if the right man comes along even the business woman is not slow to decide to retire and settle down in a home.

A NEW NATIONAL PARK.

Following a report of a special committee appointed by Secretary Work of the Interior Congress has passed a bill providing for a survey of three specified regions in the Southern Appalachian section, with a view to the selection of one of them as the site of a new national park. The three regions to be surveyed are the Shenandoah valley section of Virginia, the Smoky Mountain region of North Carolina and Tennessee and the Mammoth Cave section of Kentucky. The Shenandoah valley section was the committee's first and second choice. The conditions named by Secretary Work as essential to a national park are the possession of scenery of supreme and distinctive quality, or some natural feature so extraordinary as to be of national interest and importance, as distinguished from merely local interest, and it seems that he has also mentioned the Everglades of Florida as a qualified candidate for preference.

The Everglades and the Smoky Mountain section of the Appalachian range would seem to be much nearer what is wanted than the settled and cultivated Shenandoah valley section—the committee's first choice—if nature untamed and primal conditions in forests are desired, and usually they are when national parks are chosen. The Smoky Mountain section—the committee's second choice—is eminently suitable in this particular, its dense and remarkably varied forests, which clothe its high mountain range up to its topmost levels, being still practically untouched. Probably the "forest primal" in all its majesty and charm can now be found in such completeness nowhere else east of the Rocky Mountains.

It is not too soon to begin preparations for the commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Washington, and the President's appointment of a national commission for that purpose is heartily to be commended. Especially is this true if said its other features the commemoration takes the form of a series of more general popular understanding of the principles of patriotism and nationalism of which Washington was the exponent, and a more general and effective resolution to maintain these principles in our own time. To say "Great is Diana of the Ephesians" for the space of two hours does not mean much and less than to make monuments to Washington and make monuments in his honor which shall stand for that for which he stood. If these seven years could be marked with nationwide study of the character, career and achievements of Washington, the bicentenary of his birth would not lack its best commemoration.

The Georgia Memorial scandal suggests that the future historian of the Civil War include the battle of Stone Mountain as a sort of posthumous engagement sixty years after the surrender of Appomattox, writing taking the place of rises.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

HOLDING THE POISON.

A manufacturer consulted his family physician regarding a continuous ache in his shoulder joint. As there was no history of injury, the physician advised an X-ray of the teeth. Three of the teeth showed marked abscesses at the roots, and were removed. The pain in the shoulder didn't get very much better, and the patient told his doctor that he had given up three teeth for nothing.

The physician put it to him this way: "You are a manufacturer and are turning out certain articles. You sell them to wholesale houses, who keep them on their shelves for certain periods, long or short, and then sell them to the retailer, who in turn keeps them on his shelf before they are finally disposed of."

Now the same thing occurs in your own body.

You have stopped the manufacture of those harmful substances in the teeth.

However, you have throughout your system certain little glands which take these substances from the blood in a wholesale way. This often causes the glands to swell, as you have seen under the armpit, at the elbow, in the neck, in the groin, and so forth. Thus these poisons are still in your body, on the shelves as it were, of these glands. The reason that glands store them is so that too much of the poison may not get into the blood at any one time, and cause trouble to the system.

Accordingly, the glands allow a little of the poison at a time to go into the blood around the system, and be thrown out completely at last in other words the glands are sort of wholesalers on one side, holding the poison for a time, and retailers on the other side, sending it out in small quantities so as not to have too much poison in the blood at one time.

Thus in your body, although the poison factory—the bad teeth—has stopped manufacturing, there is still in the glands—and it takes time, sometimes months to get it all out of the system.

The reason many people get relief from pain almost immediately after the removal of teeth and tonsils, is because the glands get control of the situation sooner in some cases.

So don't be discouraged if your joint pain doesn't disappear immediately.

Remember that manufactured goods are still in your system.

ACCORD.

Accord, March 5.—March came in with weather ranging around zero and if the old adage has anything to do with it we may look forward to an early spring.

Both young and old in this vicinity are pleasantly spending these long cold wintry evenings solving cross word puzzles. They find them not only enjoyable but educational as well.

Mrs. John K. Dupuy, formerly of this place, died at Danbury, Conn., February 26. Interment was in Kyrle Cemetery.

Helen D. Le Ferre of Kingston spent the week end with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Davenport.

Mrs. Nathan Lipman is ill at the Ellenville Veterans' Memorial Hospital.

John L. Schoonmaker, who recently graduated from Cornell University, is home.

Kenneth Davenport, who sprained his ankle tobogganing some time ago, has fully recovered.

Mrs. Nelson Relyea is spending some time with her brother, Herman Coddington.

The earthquake Saturday evening was felt by a great many in this neighborhood.

A number from this place attended the dance at Stone Ridge Friday evening. All reported a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smith and friends motored to Kingston Saturday evening to see "Tom Mix in 'Buck Duane' at Keene's Theater."

The patronage dividend given by the Accord Farmers' Cooperative at its annual meeting, together with the 2 per cent cash discount which they now allow, seems to be bringing a great increase in the volume of business, judging from the number of loads of feed going out daily.

The poultry meeting which was held at the Accord M. E. Church Hall, was well attended. Prof. Ogle of Cornell gave an instructive talk on poultry and their different diseases. At noon the ladies of the M. E. Church served them with a delicious hot dinner for which they are noted.

W. Greene, agriculture agent for the N. Y. O. & W. Railroad, met with the vegetable growers of Accord and vicinity on Tuesday at the Accord Hall. The purpose of the meeting was to cooperate with the vegetable shippers in giving them better transportation service.

ACCORD.

Accord, March 5.—Mrs. H. L. Devos is spending a few days with relatives in Albany.

Mrs. Agnes Sukworth is confined to her home by illness.

Mrs. Cyra Dupuy spent Wednesday afternoon in Kingston, N. Y.

The Farm and Near Society will meet on Saturday afternoon at the church. Maurice Freer will be the leader.

The Young People's Class will meet on Friday evening, at 7:30 sharp. All young people and their friends are welcome. The lesson subject will be "The Sacraments."

Services at the Rochester Reformed Church at the usual hour, 10:30, on Sunday morning, the Rev. Mr. Braam will preach the third of the series of sermons on the words of Jesus on the cross. There will also be a Junior sermon. All are welcome. Sunday school after the morning service.

The poultry meeting held at the M. E. Church hall on last Tuesday was well attended by poultrymen from various parts of the county. Prof. Ogle of the State Poultry Department gave interesting talks in the morning and afternoon. The ladies of the M. E. Church served an excellent dinner at noon.

The usual services will be held at the M. E. Church on Sunday morning. Sunday school at ten o'clock. Preaching service at eleven o'clock conducted by the Rev. W. W. Churchill.

BROOKHEAD.

Brookhead, March 4.—Harvey Nichols has purchased a new horse.

Brookhead school has received a new book cabinet for all ages.

One of Crispell has installed a new radio in his home here.

They who received certificates from the recent examinations are as follows: Albert Gordon, sixth grade; James Gordon, sixth and seventh grades; Albert Nichols, seventh grade and Oliver Tweedy, fifth grade.

The community was shocked to hear of the sudden death of Benjamin Ducker. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

The Rev. Mr. Robinson was a caller in this place on Friday.

Mrs. Virgil Gordon and children called on Mrs. Harvey Nichols on Saturday.

Those who had a perfect attendance at school for the month of February are as follows: Albert Gordon, Albert Nichols, John Nichols, Harvey Nichols, Oliver Tweedy, Elizabeth Smith, John Edmundo, Francis Wagner and Robert Gordon.

Virgil Burger has returned to school in St. Kelly, N. J., after spending some time with his parents, John and William Gordon, Harold Gordon and William Burger, who were in Palestine have been bitten in not based on fact.

WHY

Arab Dancing Girls Are Sought in Marriage

Dancing girls are not of the demimonde in the French provinces of north Africa, according to Miss Florence Fisher of Scarsdale, N. Y., manager of the de luxe tourist parties to that part of the world. In fact, they are greatly in demand as wives and they are the only women of their race who can choose their own time and place for matrimony.

"While the average Arab girl marries in her early teens," says Miss Fisher, "and considers herself old long before she reaches thirty, the dancing girls drink their cup of joy—if cup of joy it is—to the full before they enter the bonds of matrimony and rarely wed before twenty-eight or twenty-nine. And then they are likely to make exceedingly good matches."

The reason for this, it seems, is because of the rich dowry they bring their husbands, both in material wealth and in the charms they have acquired through their art. A dancing girl, as she becomes more and more successful, buys herself gold bangles and anklets. The number and beauty of these is proof by no means of ardent personal admirers, but of skill and recognition in her profession. They are as much so as the military insignia of the soldier. Consequently, graceful and alluring girls of twenty-five and slightly upward, adorned with these trophies, are sure to draw a good husband in the marriage market.

Why Cats Can Always Land on Their Feet

How does a cat know how to land right side up when she is dropped? The answer is, according to Prof. R. Magnus of the university of Utrecht, Holland, that she doesn't need to "know" at all, at least consciously.

In the course of experiments to determine the nature of the "sense of right-side-upness" possessed by all animals, Professor Magnus put the forebrain of a cat, where consciousness resides, out of commission by an operation, and then dropped the animal upside down. Every time he did it, pussy righted herself just as quickly and as easily as though she had full possession of her faculties. Professor Magnus therefore concludes that keeping right side up is simply a mechanical or reflex action, quite beneath the dignity of attention from the higher brain centers.

Why "Tea Tasters" Are Few

No woman who smokes cigarettes can hope to become a professional tea taster, according to Miss Margaret Irving, the only woman among London's millions of women tea drinkers who has qualified as a tea expert. She has taken her place alongside men who get thousands of pounds a year for grading and judging the leaves which enter into England's favorite beverage, the New York World says.

Women tea tasters must also eschew perfumes and perfumed soaps and talcum powders. The nose and palate cooperate in deciding upon the flavor of tea and must be kept free of all influences which might affect their functioning.

Why Old Age Seems Hard

"So John D. is eighty-five," said a New York banker on the birthday of the multimillionaire. "Well, I remember a remark of his about old age that he made on his retirement from business."

"A man is like an automobile," he said. "By the time he gets himself in satisfactory running order, finds out his strength and his weaknesses, and learns how to get a decent day's work out of himself—why, by that time he's considered old-fashioned and a back number. The young folks laugh when he goes by, and nobody wants anything to do with him for love or money."

Why Dozing Is Harmful

"When your eyes come open in the morning you may lie a moment, getting used to the change from sleep, and then you should get up. Do not lie there dozing. Dozing in bed in the morning will often be enough to set the tone for an entire day of weariness. You would better get up even if you do not feel fully rested. You will sleep the surer and the better for it during the coming night."—George F. Butler, M. D.

Why He Went Down

Manager—A fine fighter you are. That guy knocked you down seven times in one round.

Sam—He snuck behind me hooded. Ever' time he done hit me, he growled, "Get down"—and Ah went—Ah had to.

Manager—Aw, bunk with that pay-the-analysis stuff.

Sam—Psycho bunkum. Ah used to be an elevator man—Athletic and Outing World.

Why French Is Spoken

The French language is used at diplomatic gatherings because it is most generally known. Latin was formerly known as the language of diplomacy, but through the ascendancy of the French under Louis XIV it became French. This is merely a custom of diplomacy and not a provision of international law.

Why Financiers Prosper

Economists have agreed that financiers are enriched on a 3 per cent interest rate. During the periods of stabilization after important conflicts the interest rate usually drops to 2 per cent. The rate held good in the case of the World war.

Merely a Legend

Authorities say that there are no more snakes in Jerusalem, and that search on vipers are apt to attack people regardless of the vicinity where they are found, the statement made that persons in Palestine have never been bitten is not based on fact.

FLIPINO PUPILS QUICKLY LEARN 106-LETTER NAME

Prominent Manila Lawyer With Complicated Cognomen Sets Memory Test and Gets Surprise.

Manila.—A prominent lawyer of Manila who is known generally simply as Col. J. N. Wolfson, but whose full name consists of 12 words containing 106 letters, is $11.00 poorer as a result of what he terms the remarkable memorizing powers of the Filipino pupils of the high school at Tarlac, province of Tarlac.

Recently Colonel Wolfson was at Tarlac on legal business, and during his stay visited the high school. He was invited by the principal, an American, to question the pupils on various topics. After receiving answers with varying success he announced that he would give 1 peso (50 cents), to each pupil who could memorize his full name in 15 minutes.

The entire school was eager for the attempt, but received something of a surprise when Colonel Wolfson wrote on the blackboard the name, Josephus Adolphus Americus Vespucius Leonidus Woldeianicus Alexandricus Napullicus Lucius Quintus Clarianatus Wolfson.

At the end of 15 minutes 23 of the 85 who made the attempt had memorized the name perfectly.

Colonel Wolfson was christened in New Orleans more than sixty years ago and came here as an officer in the volunteer army during the insurrection nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Told of Mark Twain

There is nothing more delightful in the Mark Twain autobiography than the extracts from the biography of her father written by his thirteen-year-old daughter "Susy," work that she did in her bedroom at night and kept hidden. Here are two items:

"Papa uses very strong language, but I have an idea not nearly so strong, as when he first married mamma. A lady acquaintance of his is rather apt to interrupt what one is saying, and papa told mamma that he thought he should say to the lady's husband 'I am glad your wife wasn't present when the Delly said 'Let there be light.'"

Suitable Bandeau Should Be Chosen

Knowledge of Lines Necessary in Selecting Hair Decorations.

With the increasing vogue of the bandeau now there should be little difficulty in selecting the right hair ornament to the right woman, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. Here is where a knowledge of line is very necessary. A bandeau can be very regal. It can impart an interesting touch of the oriental to the wearer, and it can be very unbecoming if care is not used in its selection. In choosing a bandeau, the shape of the face is of great importance. A short, round face should not be adorned with a band coming low down on the forehead and detracting from the already rather meager length. A narrow band should be chosen and should be worn near or right at the hairline. Nor should the bandeau itself have rounded lines. It will be much less unfavorable if it comes to a peak in the front. Also, the band ought to be comparatively plain and thin, so that it will not add heaviness to the features.

A long, narrow face can be topped by a broad bandeau that detracts from the facial surface, and should be rounded rather than pointed at the top. Also, the woman with an unusually high forehead will generally look much better in a broad bandeau than in a narrow style unless she wears her hair very low on the forehead and simply uses a narrow band across her hair.

One more fact about the round, fat face. A bandeau with ear ornaments attached may help, provided the face is not too short. These earpieces should extend well on to the cheeks so as to cover part of the facial surface.

The shape of the nose must also be taken into consideration. A woman whose nose is large and prominent should not wear a tight slender bandeau fitting close to her forehead. Flowers and leaves and any addition that will add thickness will prove more becoming, since these do bring the nose out in conspicuous.

Her. And, above all things, if your nose turns up think twice before you buy a bandeau that shapes to a point at the top.

The neck should not be entirely ignored. When a woman with a short neck buys a bandeau, she must not be tempted by a model that has ear ornaments that hang low, for these will take away what little neck she has. Flowers or other ornaments worn at the ears must be well up toward the level of the eyes, when the neckline is short.

Actually, only a tall woman or a young girl should wear a fancy bandeau with earpieces. But here we come to the subject of appropriateness in which judgment rather than rules must be applied. It is seldom that an older, mature woman looks well in fancy, flowery hair ornaments that tend to rob her of one of her most priceless possessions—dignity.

The girlish posies and beaded pansy motifs should be reserved for the younger set, and the more dignified bands of brilliant or of various metal cloths should be given to maturity. One of the few exceptions to this is in the case of the older woman of height and dignity, who will sometimes appear very queenly in a narrow band of small leaves, carrying a suggestion of the Greek goddess—beauty about its simple design.

Houdini Couldn't Do This

Headline—"Postal Inspector Believes Criminal Entered Car in Empty Sack."—Boston Transcript

A COLORFUL AND FLOWERED SPRING.

(By Eleanor Gunn.) What is in a name? Is a query far from new, yet it is rather important, if not actually necessary, to know the names given each season to shades not always new, but introduced under a new name. The hydrangea shades are among the more explicitly named colors being launched for spring, while blue, which is way at the top of popular colors, is rechristened and offered in a bewildering array from Azure, azores, Madonna, Flemish, sistine, bluet, cornflower, pervenche, periwinkle and endless other names, more or less descriptive of their tonal qualities.

Red, which is another color flagging one's attention everywhere, has many new titles, including Castilian, laquer, Goya, Fandango, Pompeian.

For appetizing meals at moderate cost

As a Spread for bread on the Table

Bread, in one form or another, appears regularly on the American family dining table at every meal. Equally important with the bread is the spread which makes it appetizing and rounds out its food values. The finest spread for bread is fresh, tasteful Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine. This blended spread is a real contribution to the art of better living. It is made by combining several choice ingredients together. In this way it is possible to secure better flavor, a purer food and sounder food-values than by a less advanced method. The mother, housewife or hostess, called upon to serve tasteful, appetizing meals, can use this table quality margarine to great advantage.

As a Shortening in Baking & Cooking

In food preparation the calls for a shortening are many. Pastry needs plenty of shortening. Roasted fowl calls for a cup and one-half for basting and dressing. And so on. With every call the quantity mounts up, until shortening is a really important item in the kitchen; and the problem is—to have good things to eat and yet keep the cost down. Fresh Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine is splendidly useful as a shortening, and solves the problem perfectly for the housewife. Cakes, biscuits, dressing and doughnuts, when made with GOOD LUCK, are excellent; and pastry is simply wonderful. GOOD LUCK improves the home menu, and is not expensive.

It is amazing how many uses have been found for cretonne—some of them so glorified that one hardly recognizes them as cretonne. It has become smart to embroider cretonnes with gold thread, or to emphasize their pattern by tiny beads. One finds entire beds made of the humble cretonne beautifully embellished, and one finds motifs of it cleverly introduced on scarf ends, on frocks, and on coats. While in sports circles one finds entire coats of it.

Flowers, regarded for a season as rather too Victorian for modern usage, are once again in favor—flowers in cretonne trimming hats, bordering gowns and worn on corsets. Designs which are inspired by them are liked, especially in children, but also for that matter, all of which makes for an interest in cretonne. (Copyright, 1925, Fairchild.)

"Chipso beats everything for dishes"

A Cleveland woman said this.

Another woman in Baltimore said: "My table glasses washed with Chipso are clear and clean—never soapy. I find, too, that after washing greasy pans with Chipso there is no ring of grease around the dish-pan."

"In my home," said a woman in Indianapolis, "Chipso has been more of a help in washing dishes than in any other way."

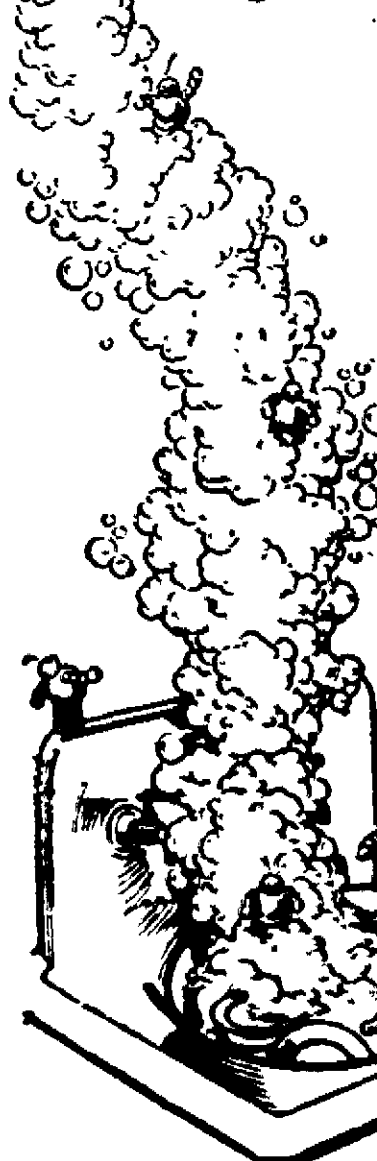

Less of women are using Chipso for everything. A Chicago housewife says: "The surface of my painted woodwork has a new luster after washing it with Chipso." A Toledo woman says, "I find Chipso all one could ask for washing kettles and for all kitchen work in general."

Don't go another day without Chipso. Two sizes, both come large. Look for the blue package with the orange band.

Admits Eyett Will to Probate

Unusual Contest Decided by Surrogate Kaufman Who Finds Instrument Stands in Law in Spite of Irregularities—No Claims of Fraud.

Surrogate George F. Kaufman has handed down a decision in the matter of proving the will of George W. Eyett, of the town of Lloyd, whose probate has been contested before him. The will is admitted to probate as the last will and testament of George W. Eyett and a decree is directed to be entered accordingly. In the trial of the matter Virgil B. Van Wagoner appeared for proponent and A. D. & A. W. Lent and John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie appeared for contestants.

The case presented an unusual circumstance, which is clearly outlined in the opinion of Judge Kaufman, which follows:

Surrogate courts are only too frequently confronted by cases indicating a tendency on the part of many persons about to make testamentary dispositions of their possessions to rely upon their own slight and faulty knowledge of such matters rather than to avail themselves of the knowledge and experience of well qualified legal practitioners. It seems remarkable that so many people, who carefully plan, industriously work and thrifflily save for years to accumulate competences for their families, will, when their aims are realized financially, jeopardize the entire undertakings and invite disaster to their loved ones by personally drafting and superintending the execution of the instruments by which their plans must, if at all, be effected. The immediate result is, of course, the saving of a very few dollars to the testator, but with few exceptions the ultimate result to his survivors is extended and expensive litigation ending either in partial or complete failure of the attempted disposition or its being at length saved by the courts by somewhat forced construction. The present case is typical.

The instrument here propounded purports to be the last will and testament of George W. Eyett. The entire document which is written on one double sheet of foolscap paper, and in the ordinary consecutive order, is, with the exception of the names and places of residence of the two subscribing witnesses, in the handwriting of the testator. It sets forth in fairly intelligible form a bequest and devise of all of the testator's personal and real estate to his wife Carrie W. Eyett, the appointment of his said wife, as executrix and a revocation of all former wills by him made. Immediately following these provisions is the concluding clause of the will proper, which reads as follows: "In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and fixed my seal the twenty second day of September, Nineteen Hundred and Seventeen." The last word of this clause, that is to say, "Seventeen" stands alone on the left end of one of the "blue lines" with which the paper is ruled, and to the right of it is a blank space more than five and a half inches long and half an inch wide. On the next blue line below this attestation clause, written entirely in the handwriting of the testator, commences and reads as follows: "The foregoing instrument was at the date thereof subscribed by George W. Eyett the testator therein named in the presence of us and each of us at the time of making such subscription acknowledged that he executed the same and declared the said instrument to be subscribed by him to be his last Will and Testament. Whereupon we at his request and in his presence and in the presence of each other do hereby subscribe our names as witnesses thereto." Under this clause appears the signature of "S. A. Ferris" and his address "Highland, N. Y." and immediately thereunder the signature "James E. Westcott" and his address "Highland, N. Y." It will be noted that the name "George W. Eyett" does not appear in the handwriting of the testator in the body of the attestation clause, although no such signature appears in the space to the right of the word "seventeen" immediately above the line on which the attestation clause commences.

The decedent's estate consisted of real property worth about $5,000.00 and personal property valued at about $2,500.00. He left no direct descendants surviving him. Upon the instrument in question being offered for probate, various nieces, nephews, grand-nieces and grand-nephews appeared and filed objections to the probate thereof whereby the matters now in controversy were raised.

From the evidence adduced by the proponent it appears that James E. Westcott, one of the subscribing witnesses died prior to the death of the testator, and that the other subscribing witness was so physically and mentally incapacitated by paresis as to preclude his being examined and to render any attempt to obtain his testimony futile. The proponent, therefore, proved the discovery of the instrument among the testator's valuable papers after his death, the fact that the entire instrument including the name "Geo. W. Eyett" in the attestation clause and excepting only the signatures and addresses of the two witnesses, was in the handwriting of the testator, and that the names and addresses of the two witnesses written at the foot of the attestation clause were the true and genuine handwriting of such witnesses, and rested. The contestants offered no evidence. There is no question that all of the evidence offered by the proponent is true, and the facts thus proven are practically conceded by all of the parties. The serious question in whether accepting all of the evidence offered by the proponent as true the propounded instrument is entitled to probate.

The contestants assert that the propounded instrument is not shown to have been validly subscribed as the said testator by the testator as required by Subdivision 1 of Section 21 of the Decedent's Estate Law. While they do not dispute the fact that the name "Geo. W. Eyett" which appears in the attestation clause is in the testator's own handwriting, they contend that there is not sufficient proof before the court that this signature was made by him in the presence of the witnesses with the intent that such signature should serve as the subscription by him of his last will and testament. In support of this contention they cite a number of cases in which the courts have indubitably held that for the signature of a testator in an attestation clause to constitute a sufficient subscription of a will there must be evidence that the testator in writing such signature there intended that it should be his subscription to the will. Foremost among the decisions thus cited is Matter of Rudolph, 180 A. D. 456.

The proponent, on the other hand, contends that the proof offered, in conjunction with the attestation clause and the fact that the will is holographic, are sufficient to entitle the instrument to probate as a will under Section 142 of the Surrogate's Court Act, which provides: "If all the subscribing witnesses to a will be dead or incompetent by reason of lunacy or otherwise, to testify or unable to testify, nevertheless, the will may, nevertheless, be established upon proof of the handwriting of the testator, and of the subscribing witnesses, and also of such other circumstances as would be sufficient to prove the will upon the trial of an action."

An exhaustive examination of the authorities fails to reveal any decision of any court in this state in an exactly parallel case. The general principles of law applicable thereto are, nevertheless, well settled, and I am convinced that these established rules as well as all of the requirements of right and justice entitle the propounded instrument to probate.

The cases cited by the contestants are not applicable to the present situation. Without exception there are decisions in cases where one or both of the subscribing witnesses were living and were produced in court and testified to facts negating an inference of due execution of a will. In other words, cases to which the provisions of section 142 of the Surrogate's Court Act, or its predecessor section 2620 of the former code of civil procedure, had no application. For instance, in matter of Rudolph, supra, both of the subscribing witnesses were living and testified that the propounded instrument was not subscribed or acknowledged in their presence and that they did not see the name of the testator in the attestation clause. In each of the other cases cited by the contestants without exception it appears that one or both of the subscribing witnesses were living and testified to facts negating an inference of due execution.

In seeking to apply these decisions to the present situation the contestants apparently make no distinction as to the proof required for the establishment of a will between cases where the subscribing witnesses are living and cases where the subscribing witnesses are dead or otherwise precluded from testifying. Where the subscribing witnesses are living the subscribing witnesses are living a much stricter rule prevails. Where the subscribing witnesses are dead the rule is relaxed under section 142 of the Surrogate's Practice Act, Matter of Foley, 55 Misc. 162; Matter of Corcoran 145 A. D. 129; Matter of Abel, 136 A. D. 788.

In short, the law lays down no inflexible rule in such cases, but accepts the best evidence that can be procured, adapted to the nature of human affairs, human infirmities and casualties, which tends with reasonable certainty to establish the fact in controversy. Matter of Hendra 119 N. Y. 617; Brown vs. Clark 77 N. Y. 269; Matter of Pepon 91 N. Y. 255; Matter of Cottrell 95 N. Y. 329; Everett vs. Everett 41 Barb. 385; Rider vs. Legg 51 Barb. 260. No unvarying rule can be laid down to control every case; the circumstances of cases must differ and hence it becomes the duty of the court to ascertain from all of the facts and circumstances of the particular case whether the instrument offered is established with reasonable certainty, and if it is, to receive the same.

The present case falls within the latter category. No eye witness of the testator's signature has been produced nor has any testimony been given as to what actually occurred at the time of the execution of the instrument in fulfillment of statutory requirements. Under such circumstances the presence of an attestation clause is of great weight. While it is not evidence it is a signed recital from which the court may infer that the statutory requirements were complied with. Matter of Briggs 47 A. D. 47; Matter of Hendra 119 N. Y. 615; Matter of Sizer 123 A. D. 7 and cases therein cited; Everett vs. Everett 41 Barb. 385; Brown vs. Clark 77 N. Y. 269. This rule is very old. Loese vs. Loese, 2 Hill 612. In the Hendra case above cited Judge Ruger said: "Proof of the signature of a deceased subscribing witness is presumptive evidence of the truth of everything appearing upon the face of the instrument relating to its execution, as it is presumed that the witness would not have subscribed his name in attestation to that which did not take place."

The attestation clause in the present case states that the propounded instrument was on the date thereof subscribed by Geo. W. Eyett, the testator therein named, in the presence of the witnesses and each of them; that the testator declared the instrument to be his last will and testament and requested the witnesses to subscribe the instrument as witnesses thereto and that they did so subscribe as witnesses in the presence of each other and in the presence of the testator. Inasmuch as the only signature below the physical end of the will is the signature at the top of the attestation clause it is a reasonable inference that that is the subscription to which the subscribing witnesses refer and attest. Under the rule above referred to the presumption of the execution arises. This presumption has not been rebutted by any evidence whatever.

Another circumstance which enters into the present case with forceful effect is that the propounded instrument is holographic. In such cases substantial compliance has repeatedly been held to have been sufficient. Matter of Beckett, 103 N. Y. 167; Matter of Akers, 74 A. D. 167, affirmed on opinion below in 173 N. Y. 620; Matter of Livingston, 153 A. D. 49; Matter of Turrell, 166 N. Y. 350; Matter of Moore, 109 A. D. 162, affirmed in 187 N. Y. 573; Matter of Field, 204 N. Y. 448.

In the enactment of subdivision 1 of section 21 of the Decedent's Estate Law, the legislature undoubtedly had in mind the protection of testators and their beneficiaries from the danger of imposition and fraud from unauthorized additions and changes in their wills. That danger does not exist when, as in this case, the will is holographic. Every word of the testamentary dispositions of the present instrument is in the testator's own handwriting and the danger of fraud is therefore minimized.

It has been the policy of the courts to relax the requirements of the statute in connection with holographic wills. That policy ought to be pursued in cases like the present where a rigid construction of the statute would defeat the intention of the testator and cause great hardship and injustice to his widow, whom he intended at all events to protect. In fact the rules of stricter construction applied in the earlier cases, of which matter of Andrews 162 N. Y. 1 is typical, seem to have been somewhat relaxed by later decisions, particularly by the unanimous opinion of the Court of Appeals in Matter of Field 204 N. Y. 448, where at page 457 that court characterized the decision in the Andrews case as extreme and says: "Form should not be raised above substance in order to destroy a will, and the substantial thing in this case is a paper which reads straightforward and without interruption from the beginning to the end and when thus read the signature is found at the end."

In the present case there is no doubt whatever that the propounded instrument is with the exception of the signature of the witnesses entirely in the handwriting of the testator and that it was intended by him to be his last will and testament. It reads straight forward from beginning to end. Every dispositive provision thereof appears above the testator's signature. The disposition made is not only lawful, but praiseworthy. Not the slightest intimation of fraud is made. The circumstances of the execution of the instrument clearly appears from the attestation clause. It was witnessed by two subscribing witnesses of good character and standing in the community in which they resided. No question of the genuineness of any of the handwriting appearing upon the instrument is raised.

The proponent is unfortunate enough by reason of the death of one witness and the present mental disability of the other not to be able to produce either witness. This untoward circumstance, however, for which she is in no manner to blame, coupled with technical objections as to the form and manner of execution of this instrument ought not to deprive her of the benefits which the testator intended her to enjoy. While I realize it is the intention of the legislature and not that of the testator which governs in this case, I am confident that the admission of the propounded instrument to probate conforms not only to the intent of the testator, but to the intent of the legislature as well.

The propounded instrument is therefore admitted to probate as the last Will and Testament of George W. Eyett, deceased, and a decree is directed to be entered accordingly. In view of the unusual circumstances of this matter no costs will be allowed against any of the parties. Dated, March 2, 1925.

Mannerchor Lenten Supper

Sunday evening, the Rondout Social Mannerchor members with their wives and their invited guests will entertain Professor Gratzkopf of Brooklyn, well known to many Kingstonians, who had the pleasure of meeting him on former visits.

The professor visits the society as a missionary on Sunday, when he will give an address on "How a Singing Organization Should Observe the Lenten Season." Professor Gratzkopf is a capable and very popular orator of Brooklyn. The members of the Mannerchor will remember the professor as he paid an unexpected visit two years ago at the annual outing which was held at Pierro's Park, Stony Hollow.

All members of the Mannerchor are requested to bring their wives or lady friends as the distinguished visitor has never attended a necktie and apron party. The members and friends are requested to bring an apron and necktie to match. The professor has notified the committee that he will have a lady friend and also a necktie and apron. He also hopes to escort the prettiest lady to the supper, which will follow the address and the general program.

All members, active or otherwise, are invited to attend with lady, necktie and apron to match. The invited guests must do likewise.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—In pursuance of an order of the Hon. George F. Kaufman, Surrogate of Ulster County, made in honor of the estate of the late Mrs. Mary Ellen Gratzkopf, deceased, to give notice to the creditors of the said estate, to present their claims, to the undersigned, at the office of Chris J. Flanagan, 31 Broadway, in the city of New York, on or before the first day of July, 1925.

ARNOLD TREASON HOUSE IS DOOMED

Mansion Where Surrender Plot Was Hatched to Be Razed.

New York—There are four scenes to this story:

In an upper room of a house that overlooks the sunlit waters of the Hudson two men are sitting at a table. It is early morning. They have just had breakfast. One poses rather debonairly and dashing. He is a young man of thirty, gay, handsome and winning. His uniform is the red, laced coat of a British officer. The other man is fully ten years his senior. His face is strong, powerful, bitter, the smoldering fire of anger cloud his eyes. His uniform is the buff and blue of a high ranking officer in the Continental army. His hand makes notes on sheets of paper. He passes them over to his companion. "Carry them in your shoe," he says. "I think everything is arranged now."

Some weeks later. From a stone building in his shirt-sleeves emerges the same British officer. A silent crowd is assembled. Pity and sympathy for a brave man are written on the faces of all. The young British officer takes his place between two Continental officers and they begin to walk forward—toward a gallows and a cart.

Years later on his death-bed in London the older man is tossing. Memories haunt him of a land where his name is an execration. His fevered mind goes back to the days before a certain black morning when he was a leader of gallant men on many a stricken field. "Bring it out," he mutters. "Let me die in my old American uniform. God forgive me for what I have done to my country."

The last scene is of the present day. A group of men are conferring. One of them is the head of a state institution. The state requires a site for a new building. It is determined upon. The papers are drawn. The old house that stands on the grounds will come down to make way for a modern structure. With its demolition there will pass a landmark that stands for one of the blackest pages in American history.

That, in brief, is the story of "Treason House," the old Joshua Hett Smith mansion in West Haverstraw, Rockland county, which is to be torn down in order to erect a new state orthopedic hospital on its site. In "Treason House" Benedict Arnold and Major John Andre sat at breakfast after their midnight meeting on the banks of the Hudson. In "Treason House" they perfected the last details of Arnold's traitorous plan to surrender West Point to the British. From "Treason House" Andre emerged to meet capture and death, and from it Arnold went forth to blot an honorable career with the stigma of the traitor.

Arnold and Andre Meet.
Raging at the treatment meted out to him by congress and the supreme executive council at Philadelphia, Benedict Arnold had come to West Point as commander of the post. He was the hero of Quebec and of Saratoga. One leg wounded in two places bore witness to his bravery on the field. He was Washington's most trusted general. He had a record for leadership and sacrifice in the Continental cause second to none. But he was a morose and embittered man.

Writing under the name of "Gustavus," he entered into communication with Sir Henry Clinton, commander of the British forces in New York, and was answered by an aid, Andre, who assumed the name of "John Anderson." Arnold offered to station his troops so that the British would encounter no difficulty in seizing West Point. It was a strategic post on which the British had long had their eyes. The correspondence went on. A personal meeting between Arnold and Andre became imperative if the underhand scheme were to go through.

And so one day the British sloop-of-war Vulture, with all sails set, glided up the waters of the Hudson and anchored not far from Stony Point. Arnold had laid his plans well. When darkness came a small boat went alongside the Vulture and Joshua Smith boarded her. At Arnold's command he was seeking a man who was to "bring important news" to the West Point commander. A long blue surcoat covered Andre's uniform as he stepped into the small boat, and Smith did not know that the silent passenger he was rowing to shore was a foe of the newly born republic. All he knew was that Arnold had sent him out to bring some one back, and he was doing so. The bow of the boat grated on the sands of the western shore in the shadow of the mountain known as Long Cove. For a moment Smith left the boat and disappeared into the bushes, where a muffled and creaked figure met him.

"Is he here?" demanded the figure. "Yes," said Smith.

A Long Conference.
"Bring him to me," came the order. Smith went back to the boat and in a few minutes Andre had made his way through the thicket to the side of the other. A few words of identification were exchanged. In half whispers and carefully lowered voices the conversation proceeded.

Throughout the parties two humble figures waited in the background. One of them was Smith, miserably uncomfortable in the boat at the water's edge; the other a servant Arnold had brought down from Smith's house to hold the horses while he carried on his plot. The hours were on and Smith finally came up to voice a warning.

"It's getting dawn," he told them. "The gentlemen are going back to the boat but he had better go now." But all was not finished yet. There were important points still to be cleared up. Arnold suggested to Andre that he stay one more night on shore, promising that he would be rowed safely out to the Vulture the following night. Andre felt in with the plan. Through the little village of Haverstraw they rode in the dawn, past the challenge of the Continental sentries and on to Treason House.

Once within its doors, they went to an upper room, where they could resume their plotting in secrecy. Their long conference in the night air had made both of them hungry. As over breakfast they went on with their discussion, they were interrupted by an ominous sound. A detachment of Continental soldiers had seen the Vulture in the river and had brought a cannon down to the shore. The booming thunder of its shots was rolling up and down the Hudson. Arnold and Andre looked out of the windows of Treason House and saw the Vulture haul up her anchor and move swiftly down stream and out of range. Andre was frankly worried.

"It may not be so easy to get back to the ship," he said.

Benedict Arnold thought for a moment. "I will give you a pass that will take you safely back to New York by land if you cannot reach the Vulture," he announced. The pass was duly written out authorizing the Continental guards to let "John Anderson" through their lines.

Andre's Fatal Journey.
All that day Andre remained in the upper room of Treason House looking out over the river at the far-off Vulture and counting the hours that remained until darkness should fall and he could attempt his escape from the American lines. Evening came and he demanded of Smith, the house's owner, that he row him out to the British sloop. Here, however, an obstacle appeared. It seems that Smith was obstinate in refusing to run the gauntlet of possible Continental fire on the way to the ship. He offered instead to guide Andre down to New York by road, and with this offer Andre had to be content.

Under cover of darkness they crossed to the other side of the river and began the journey that was to end in Andre's capture at Tarrytown. Benedict Arnold had expected the British to come up the river to seize West Point on the day arranged for. Confidently he was waiting for them. But on the scheduled day General Washington himself arrived on the scene, sending ahead of him his aid, Alexander Hamilton, to announce his coming. The news broke on Arnold like a bombshell. At practically the same moment there arrived a note from Andre telling of his capture. In that crisis Arnold proved that no matter how great a scoundrel he might be he was nevertheless a man of extraordinary courage. In a calm tone he asked his roomful of Continental officers and guests to excuse him for a few minutes. He went to the door and ordered his servant to saddle his fastest horse and bring it up at once. Then he stepped upstairs to his wife, the former Peggy Chippen, whose machinations on behalf of the British have since been established.

"The plot has been discovered," he announced. "I must escape at once."

Arnold Escapes.
Again he returned calmly to his guests, chatted with them for a few moments and for a second time excused himself. There came a clatter of stones, a flying horse and a rider charged down the steep trail to the river bank, known to this day as Arnold's path. At the shore waited Arnold's six-oared barge. He flung himself from his mount, settled himself in the stern of the boat and drew out his pistol.

"Row," he commanded. "Down the river until I give you the word to stop."

The barge pulled out into midstream and the rowers bent to their oars. Off Verplanck's Point there still lay the Vulture and it was alongside the British sloop that Arnold's barge finally pulled up. He stepped on board. The news was carried to Washington. "Whom can we trust now?" was all he said.

Within a few days a letter to Washington arrived from the fugitive. He asked his former commander to protect Mrs. Arnold "from every insult and injury that a mistaken vengeance of my country may expose her to."

The defection of Arnold does not seem to have been of much service to the British cause. He led their troops in a number of expeditions, none of which were of any great importance. The memory of that black day at Treason House seems to have been with him to his death. The hatred of the countrymen he had betrayed reached overseas and struck him down. Brooding through the years, he fell victim to a rocking nervous disease from which he died in 1801, calling on his deathbed. It is told, for his old American uniform.

And now Treason House itself is to disappear forever. Perhaps it is well. The recollections which it summons up out of the past are best forgotten.—New York Times.

Horse Is Lucky

Bristol, Va.—An automobile "wreck" from Bluff City was recently called to the farm of Joe Cox, where a horse fell 35 feet into a well. A derrick was used to hoist the animal, which weighed 1,200 pounds, to the surface. The horse suffered no ill effects from the fall.

Hookworm Curative Cheap

Carbon tetrachloride, a cheap commercial chemical, has been found to be a good curative in the treatment of hookworm infection, as a result of experimental work with it in British Guiana. Its curative value was discovered through experiments on animals by the United States Department of Agriculture. One of its chief advantages is that it causes no serious reaction on the patient while it is being administered, many men suffering from hookworm being treated under a brilliant sun while at work. The chemical has been used in other parts of the world with corresponding success.

The Ohio Wesleyan-Colgate debate will be held in Buffalo Friday evening but the speakers will deliver their arguments again for broadcast from the Hotel Statler Saturday afternoon.

The Colgate-Ohio Wesleyan debate is regarded by both schools as the big forensic event of the year. The two schools have met in debate for many years with honors well divided. Ohio Wesleyan won last year in a debate at Erie, Pa.

Flemming will be engaging in his first intercollegiate debate when he represents Ohio Wesleyan against Colgate Friday night. He is one of two sophomores included on the Ohio Wesleyan team. Flemming will be the first speaker for the Ohio Wesleyan team which will uphold the affirmative of the question.

RESULTS OF KEEPING MILK FROM BABY

Recently one of the district state health officers investigated a case of suspected poliomyelitis in a baby eleven months old, living in one of the small communities of this district. The result of his examination determined that the child was suffering with scurvy, says Health News, the publication issued by the New York State Department of Health.

Careful inquiry disclosed that this child had been fed exclusively on condensed milk at all times, although the family lived in the heart of an extensive dairy community and only a few hundred feet from a large milk producing farm where fresh cow's milk could have been obtained at a smaller cost than the condensed milk. Upon a change of diet with the addition of orange juice, the child immediately improved.

This is the second instance within a short time that this district state health officer has made a diagnosis of infantile scurvy in a case originally suspected of being acute anterior poliomyelitis. Both of these cases occurred in babies fed on condensed milk and both lived in well known dairy communities.

They returned from a party to spend the evening with friends. On reaching home they proceeded to the kitchen to ransack the ice-box. The guest and her hostess paused in the dining room to remove their cloaks. "My dear," called the lady into the kitchen presently, "what are you opening that can with?"

"With a can-opener," shouted her husband. "What do you suppose?"

"We wondered from the remarks," replied the wife, "if you were opening it with prayer."

ADVICE TO TRAPPERS.

Fur House Says Obedience To Law Means More Fur.

One of the largest fur houses in the country has sent this message to 8,100 trappers in this state:

If your state has a trapping law, obey it, regardless of whether or not you think it is right. If it is a good law, such as most states have, you, as a trapper, will get more benefit from its observance and enforcement than the average citizen, because good trapping laws help to conserve the fur supply.

If the law does not meet with your approval and is an unfair law such as some states have, obey it while it is a law and use your influence to get your state legislature to correct it.

FOR TEN YEARS
"The World's Greatest Buy"
Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

Hudson is not called "the World's Greatest Buy" for today alone. That is acknowledgment of ten years' constant refinement of a great car around the famous patented Super-Six principle.

The reasons for that position affect all motor car buying. They cannot be ignored.

A supreme and exclusive motor principle, adding power, smoothness, performance, without added weight, cylinders or cost. The largest production of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world—and the value advantages of that position. Actual proof of greatest value—which is SALES. And now the greatest price advantage with the finest quality Hudson ever offered.

It is only as you find the real comparisons for Hudson qualities among the costliest cars that the enormous difference in price is so astonishing.

All now know that higher price can buy no smoother performance than Hudson's. It cannot buy more brilliant results in pick-up, power or speed. It cannot buy greater reliability or endurance.

And with all this capacity and flexibility Hudson keeps the economy, simplicity and easy maintenance of the "Six."

At today's prices need you own a lesser car? Can a costlier car satisfy you more?

ANAEMIA

A remarkable discovery has enabled thousands of worn-out, tired, nervous, anaemic people to increase their strength and energy, often in two weeks' time, and to quickly change their leaden pallor and listless look to the pink skin, rosy lips and sparkling eyes of glowing health. Formerly they were given the old-fashioned tinctures and pills made from mineral iron, which many doctors now say are scarcely assimilated at all, and so give little benefit. But since the discovery of a new combination of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is promptly taken up by the blood, thousands have found that they can banish every trace of tiredness and listlessness, those peculiar pains and that nervous incident to old age, in a few short weeks. Furthermore, Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. It quickly helps build up rich, red blood that carries new strength, vitality and youth to your whole body.

No matter how weak and ill you feel, or how many other medicines you have tried in vain, make this convincing test: Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks, and if you do not notice a wonderful improvement in strength and energy and look years younger, the druggist will promptly refund your money. Nuxated Iron is sold under this absolute guarantee by all good druggists.

LIVES NEEDLESSLY PLACED IN DANGER
If You Allow Your Children to Get Run Down, You are Taking a Great Risk

Thousands of lives are needlessly lost every year through neglect. Mothers who allow their children to become weakened or run-down, who let their children and youths hang on, are taking a great risk of more serious disease developing.

Prompt means to regain flesh and strength are found in

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

The nourishing food elements of which steadily rebuild wasted tissues. The great food value of Father John's Medicine, proven by scientific tests, is clearly shown by the fact that a great many people gain weight steadily while taking this old-fashioned tonic and body-builder.

With a history of more than sixty years' success it is positively guaranteed that Father John's Medicine does not contain any alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form. It is, therefore, a safe medicine for every member of the family.

NEW PALTZ.
New Paltz, March 5.—Mrs. P. Lundrup tells that about thirty-five years ago the manufacturing of the roofing made from cement was started in Denmark. Three years ago when Mr. Lundrup visited his native land and home he was greatly impressed with the beauty and durability of the new roofing. He carefully inspected some of the buildings that had been roofed with the cement tile twenty-five to thirty years ago and found them in as good condition as when built. After he came back home for a time he had the machine for making the tile sent over from Denmark. This past winter a Danish friend of Mr. Lundrup, Ingvald Rosvang, has been making tile on a small scale, so that New Paltz will see its first tile roof this coming summer as Mr. Lundrup has started plans for the foundation of a bungalow that he is going to build on the corner of Eltinge and South Side avenues and will use the tile roofing. Mr. Lundrup hopes to commercialize the making of tile.

Rotarians Hear Two Presidents

One of Whom Wants Help in the Work of Abolishing a Relic of Old Indian Trail Days.

Kingston Rotarians had for their speakers at the weekly luncheon on Wednesday Carl Stauffer, president of the Tuesday Luncheon Club of Ellenville and Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States. President Coolidge's inaugural address was heard clearly over a radio installed for the occasion by W. Davis Hawk and President Stauffer was present in person. He described the progress and lack of progress made by the state highway department in the building of the Ellenville-Fort Jervis road, which is not yet completed. After much delay the road has been built from Ellenville to Wurtsboro, but from that place to Cuddebackville the road is very bad.
It is part of the old mine road, in existence as an Indian trail before the coming of the white man and is one of the oldest roads in America.
Anyone can prove this by riding over it, which will convince him that not only is it a very old road, but still in its original condition.

With this road completed, tourist travel from the south will be very heavy through Ellenville and Kingston. President Stauffer said, which will benefit both places, and no effort should be spared to induce the state to wake up and have the work done. At present the road has not even been assigned a number or a distinctive color to be placed on the maps as part of the state system of numbered highways.

Claims Against City.

To the Editor of The Freeman,
Sir:

I have noticed several claims in the paper for falling on icy sidewalks.
About thirty years ago as near as I can remember, there was a law passed reading like this, and I carried it in my pocketbook until it was worn out, and it reads like this: Before anybody can collect damages, for falling on icy sidewalks, they must serve a written notice on the authorities that the sidewalk is dangerous, then if not attended to, any one falling and injuring themselves can collect damages.

Middletown, Kingston, and other Hudson river cities had claims filed for $150,000, for people falling on the sidewalks that time.

BERENICE

Was the daughter of Ptolemy IX,
Auletes, who began to reign in Egypt
B. C. 81. She was the sister of the celebrated Cleopatra. While her father was at Rome from 58 to 55 B. C.
Berenice was made Regent, but on the restoration of Auletes he put his daughter to death.

Berenice first married Seleucus, whom, it is said, she caused to be strangled. She afterwards married Archelaus, who was also put to death by Auletes, her father.

FIRST N. Y. THEATER, ETC.

The theaters of Gotham are numbered by the hundreds today, in fact the average citizen does not know exactly where a dozen of even the most prominent are located.

In the year of grace 1750 there was not so much confusion for the very good reason that the city had only one theater, in Nassau street, which was opened this date 170 years ago, by a company of players from England, presenting Shakespeare's "King Richard the Third." The first umbrella seen in America was hoisted at Baltimore 155 years ago today, and it certainly created a furore.
Count Alessandro Volta, the Italian electrical pioneer from whose name the word "volt" was derived, died in Como, Italy, 1827.

Röntgen, the discoverer of the
"X-ray" was born 81 years ago today.

THE BOSTON MASSACRE.

The first act in the drama of the American Revolution against British authority was staged 155 years ago today, March 5, 1770, on which date occurred the clash which has gone down in history as the Boston Massaacre.

The quartering of English soldiers in Boston in 1768 led to continuous friction between the red-coats of King George and the Bostonians. On that March day in 1770 their resentment took the form of pelted some soldiers with snow balls.
A lad named Crispus Attucks was the leader of the snow-balling party. The soldiers were commanded by Captain Preston. The soldiers fired into the crowd, killing three and wounding seven, of whom three died. The act of the soldiers infuriated the Bostonians, who called a mass meeting to discuss means of retaliation. The troops were removed to Castle Island, however, and for a time peace was restored.

HIGHLAND

Highland, March 5.—Mrs. Jacob Schublo has been quite ill but at this writing glad to report, is improving.

Queen Esther people met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs.
Hotchkiss.

Mrs. George Eckert has returned from Kingston where she has visited with her daughter.

Quite a few Masons from this place attended session in Kingston Tuesday evening when the third degree was conferred. They had a fine time.

Mrs. C. Hoyerstadt attended a card party in Poughkeepsie last week. It was for O. E. S., Vassar Chapter.

On March 20 there will be a benefit card party for the library.

Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer who were residents of this place for a short time, have now moved to Marlborough.

WHAT IS GAS?

GAS is "the cream of Coal". It is sent to you through pipes, clean and always ready for instant use.

It was separated from the coal back there in the gas works, leaving behind all the dust, dirt, grime and ashes.

The gas plant is a sort of community dirt and labor eliminator. The gas man takes over the job and relieves the user of all trouble, discomfort and inconvenience.

Yet with all this service, one can cook a meal as cheaply with gas as with any other fuel.

Modern homes are now constructed so that the kitchen can be heated from the furnace and gas is used for cooking the year round. It is also used for heating water both winter and summer, because it is the most convenient way.

All this makes for a clean kitchen and a clean house. Gas is economical to use because the instant the cooking is finished, it can be turned out, and there is no waste.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

It Fired the First Gun in the Revolution

Contrary to popular opinion, the opening gun of the Revolution was not fired at Lexington, Mass., on April 19, 1775. That honor really belongs to Portsmouth, N. H., where the first overt act in the war for independence took place, December 14, 1774.

On December 13, 1774, Paul Revere, as yet unknown to fame but already acting as messenger in the cause of American liberty, rode posthaste into Portsmouth to warn the local committee of public safety that General Gage was planning to reinforce Fort William and Mary, an ancient fortress of stone in Portsmouth harbor.

Gov. John Wentworth heard of Revere's arrival and sent word to Capt. John Cochran, commander of the little garrison of five soldiers, to be on guard against an attempt by the colonists to seize the munitions in the fort. Accordingly Cochran mounted three four-pounders on the walls of the fort where an attack would most likely come and ordered a sharp watch kept that night.

About four o'clock the next morning a party of 400 citizens, led by John Langdon, later a governor of New Hampshire, and John Sullivan, destined for fame as the conqueror of the Iroquois confederacy during the Revolution, approached the fort in boats. Cochran immediately opened fire, but took care to shoot over the heads of the mob, for he realized what his fate would be if he killed any of them.

Undaunted by the firing, the colonists swarmed into the fort, took Cochran and his men prisoners, but released them after they had carried away 100 barrels of gunpowder (some of which, incidentally, was "returned" to the British from the flaming mouths of patriotic muskets on Bunker Hill a little later) and other supplies. Although Governor Wentworth issued a proclamation calling for the arrest of these "traitors to his majesty," nothing was ever done about it, and in June, 1775, after his efforts to enlist more men to defend the fort had failed, he moved into Fort William and Mary with his family to hold it for King George.

By August the situation had become so threatening that Wentworth was glad to make his escape on a British warship and immediately after his departure the Americans demolished the fortress. Years later another fort was built on this historic spot and it was appropriately named Fort Constitution, a fit successor to the British Fort William and Mary, where the opening gun of the Revolution was fired.

Easy to Clean Shades

To clean white window shades, spread a sheet on the floor, enroll the shade and with a soft cloth scrub the shade with ammonia and water. After treating one side turn the shade over and clean the other side in the same way. This method removes the dirt and restores the shade at a cost of about 10 cents.

Governed by Opinions

The world is governed much more by opinion than by laws. It is not the judgment of courts, but the moral judgment of individuals and masses of men, which is the chief wall of defense around property and life. With the progress of society, this power of opinion in taking the place of arms—Channing.

Thinks Busses Short Lived. To the Editor of The Freeman.

Sir: Will you permit an old woman to say a few things about the many things our "bore too" of a trolley road wishes to do, and all of which seems to get into your valued paper through the efforts of an employee of the company, but nothing is said by any one for our city.

It seems to me, woe the citizens, who have to pay the bill eventually should be permitted a few thoughts.

It was only a few years ago the Colonial trolley road was built. The proprietors offered to do anything for the privilege of ripping up our streets and mashing things up generally. My husband said at the time, "These people are not representative citizens of our city. These men are only building to sell out to the Kingston City trolley road which is a proposition. They are fooling themselves. Kingston City trolley will never buy." As we see, this prediction was far-sighted and true. Now, ever since the roads have become consolidated there has been about an annual bidding out of the hat to help an over-stocked over-tried the over-hating system, which will soon kill any trolley system in these days of Henry Ford's store pipe from home, which is a large factor in the falling off of street where more than a five cent fare is charged. Now, we come to an old woman's scheme. Start a bus line. Now we have it. Start a bus line; then in a short time we will say, the bus can do the whole thing. Let's scrap the trolley. Then there will be no tax to pay and no streets to repair and Mr. Citizen will have to pay a bus fare of ten cents or walk. Who thought this up? As a woman it has always seemed to me, if you must compete, then make your goods cheap enough to make people buy.

One of the successful trolley road builders said, "Make your trolley road so good and your fares so cheap that your road is a necessity. Then you will have soon all the business our city trolley road is an 8 cent fare. As a woman I must say a bus is the hardest thing to get in and out of and one of the most uncomfortable things ever invented to ride in. A new machine and a few new employees have done wonders for some trolley roads.

The bus is in the experimental stage and may be obsolete in ten years because of the price or scarcity of fuel. Also the bus is a never ending bill of expense for breakdowns and repairs. I quote from J. C. Wheeler in the Railway Age: "With cheap by-product electric power, such as our trolley road has, and cheap fares and an interested and intelligent management there is nothing that can compete with trolley cars. And when this old iron-horse craze has exhausted itself, we will gladly return to this cheapest system ever invented. The trolley."

Respectfully submitted, M. J. M.

What Recent Earthquake Did

This apartment house in Schenectady, N. Y., felt an severely the earthquake which rocked the Eastern coast recently, that it fell more than a foot out of plumb. The walls are twisted and the entire structure may have to be torn down as it is no longer safe for habitation.

Proof That Stone Age Man Knew Use of Iron

The use of iron was known to the Stone Age man, Dr. Albert Sauveur of the Harvard School of Engineering told the Third Pan-American Scientific congress at Lima, Peru, the other day. Hammered implements of meteoric iron have been found in the ancient mounds in Ohio.

"So simple was the operation required for extracting a small mass of malleable iron that primitive man may well have discovered it by means of a fire accidentally lighted on ground where iron ore existed near the surface," said Doctor Sauveur.

The first iron furnaces were a single excavation on the side of the hill facing the prevailing wind, with an opening at the bottom for the draft. In this appliance the ore was heated, and in contact with charcoal a small, pasty mass of iron was obtained.

These primitive furnaces were called bloomeries. Very early in the development of the iron industries an artificial blast was introduced. In the south of Europe artificial blast furnaces were used long before the Roman invasion.

It was not until the early part of the Twentieth century that steel began to take the place of wrought iron manufactured as it was in the days of Cort in the Seventeenth century. With the development of Bessemer steel, although it needed high-grade ore, wrought iron was practically obsolete.

No improvement in the Bessemer process has been recorded; however, iron ore has been reduced by electricity as a source of heat and carbon as a reducing agent. Manganese steel appeared to startle the metallurgical world some years ago by its extreme resistance. It was not until 1914, however, that stainless steel, an alloy of steel, was announced by its discoverer, Harry Brearley. Its adoption for the manufacture of cutlery was immediately appreciated and it is now widely used for that purpose.—Science Service.

But, if his is a great inheritance, it entails no light responsibility. He is heir to a place in the hearts of his people that will be extremely difficult to fill. To bear worthily the name of H. E. Lee is no easy task. Men will expect much from young Robert. May he have the strength to live up to their expectations.

The fourth Robert has been born into the world as the child of fortune. If he is not wealthy in material things of life, he is fabulously rich in the high traditions that have come down to him through a long line of most distinguished ancestors. No blood is to be found in any part of the globe is better than his; he is an aristocrat of aristocrats. His great grandfather was the finest flower of Anglo-Saxon civilization, the possessor of a mind and heart that have added luster to the history of the race.

But, if his is a great inheritance, it entails no light responsibility. He is heir to a place in the hearts of his people that will be extremely difficult to fill. To bear worthily the name of H. E. Lee is no easy task. Men will expect much from young Robert. May he have the strength to live up to their expectations.

There have been several attempts made in that section to commercialize the muskrat possibilities, and the business appears to have a sound basis. The swamps are fenced with small net wire screen set well down in the muddy bottom land, but the rats go through it when they feel inclined. This man, it is said, based his success on an abundance of fresh water and a systematic elimination of rats that prey on the young "kitas." No feeding is necessary, I am told.

Collar Button Collar

"Although the elusive collar button has been made the subject of jokes for years, its reputation is well earned," declared a Burlington avenue resident. "But I have discovered an efficient method for combating its wayward tendencies. I had my wife fix some straps to fit on the neck and the collar, closing up the space between these pieces of furniture and the floor. And now, when I drop a button, while it rolls straight for its usual hiding place, it is stopped by its own flight in the straps. All I have to do then is to reach down, pick it up and chuckle."—Detroit News.

Candy From Tree

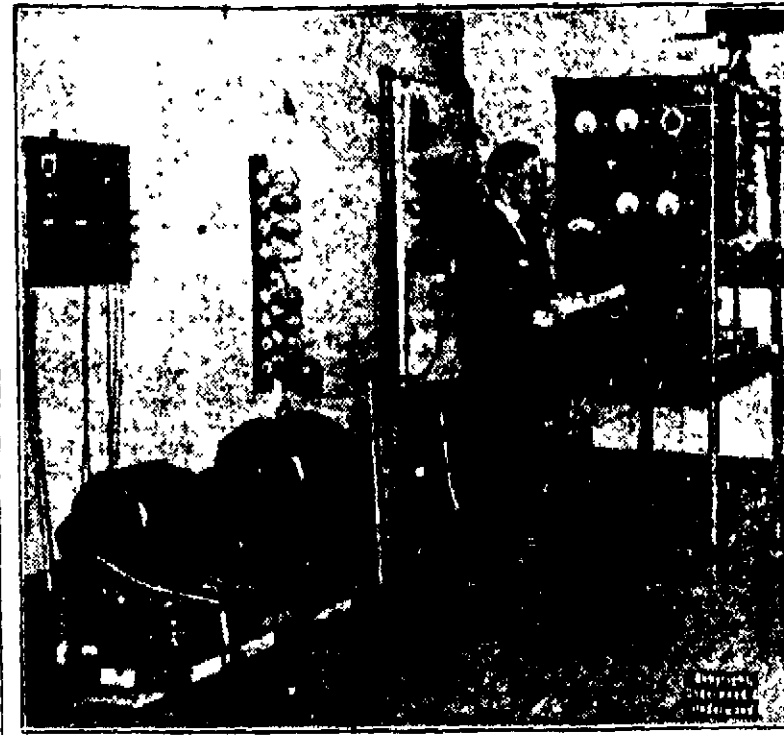

In India there flourishes a species of tree which produces sticky flowers that are used as candy. The petals of the flowers drip from the tree in the early morning and are picked up by the women and children, who spread them in the sun to dry. A whole tree is said to provide ten pounds of flowers annually.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising)

Radio Station at the University of Illinois—Part of Broadcasting Studio, Transmitter and Power Room All in One.

Success of the noncarrier wave system of broadcasting, which was developed by H. A. Brown and G. A. Keener, members of the electrical engineering staff of the University of Illinois, is announced as positive after another series of tests which bore out the results of previous tests held over a period of more than a year.

The elimination of "fading" is an added feature of the new broadcasting system which now seems possible. In the last series of tests, instruments which accurately measured the curve of audibility of both the carrier wave system and the new noncarrier system were set up at a distance of 100 miles from station WRM, the university's radiophone with which the experimental work is carried on. These instruments showed the usual fading when the old system was used, but did not vary a particle when the noncarrier system was employed. However, this advantage is not yet being claimed, because it has not been subjected to enough tests to establish it as a fact.

Previous advantages which were claimed for the system and which the final tests show as outstanding over the system now in general use include increased sending efficiency, more selective tuning at the receiver with greater possibility to tune out local stations, opportunity to cover greater distances and the elimination of all sorts of sounds which are impressed on the carrier wave and which only perfect modulation at the transmitting end and perfect detection at the receiver can eliminate.

The suppressed carrier or noncarrier system differs from the present type of broadcasting in that the carrier waves go out only when a note is sounded or a syllable spoken. Between notes or spoken words, the carrier wave does not go through the air. That is, the sound and the wave on which it rides leave the broadcasting apparatus simultaneously. This interval of time between sounds when there is no carrier wave in the air makes possible the advantages noted.

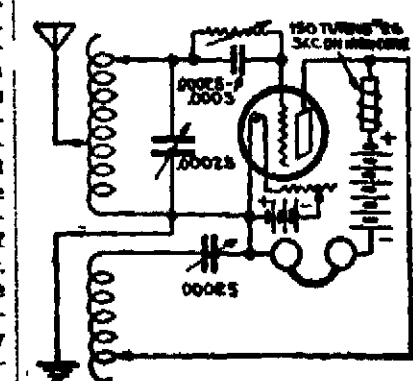

This Hookup Based on Old Weagant Circuit

By EARL T. DENTON

Some time ago there appeared in Radio Digest a Reinartz hookup by C. T. Hanavan, and I have tried this circuit with good results, but with the tickler coil placed as shown in the accompanying diagram I obtained much better results. This arrangement is based on the original Weagant circuit.

This hookup gave louder and greater distance signals than the straight tickler coil arrangement of the Reinartz circuit. The greatest improvement was in the ease with which the set could be controlled once the proper size of tickler coil was found.

The only trouble that was experienced in building the set using this circuit was to find the correct size of the tickler coil. The exact number of turns on this coil must be found by experimentation, as it varies with the design of the set. But in most cases it will be found necessary to have more turns on the tickler than is generally used on the straight Reinartz set. Do not give up on the first try-out, because the set will work and it will be well worth the effort used in experimenting with the tickler coil.—Radio Digest.

Use Indoor Loops to Escape License Fee

The British postmaster general is meeting with serious difficulties in handling radio receiver licensing regulations, for it is estimated that there are about 2,000,000 persons who have receivers in their homes and who are not provided with licenses.

Indoor aerials make it impossible for the authorities to know if there are sets or not, and direct intervention in private dwellings on mere suspicion or denunciation is not permitted in the British Isles.

The authorities are therefore in a quandary, especially as it is believed that many amateurs will refuse to renew their licenses. The loss of revenue to the B. R. C. would be enormous.

Avoid Sharp Bends

A sharp bend in a wire not only offers a good point for energy to be radiated from, but it also changes the resistance of the wire. All wires should be laid directly to the proper terminal without bending, if possible.

Where it is necessary to bend a wire at right angles, use round wire pieces or some other tool to make the curve a large one.

Radiator Cover

The bureau of mines says that the covering of a radiator with thin cloth or with a board will not reduce the heat in a room. On the contrary it throws the heat out into the room where it is more effective than if allowed to spread directly to the ceiling.

Hints for Radio Fans

When using a set with several stages of radio frequency that are not neutralized, be sure to use vernier dials or attachments.

Try connecting the negative B lead to first the positive and then the negative A battery post, and note which gives the best results.

Use a good mica grid condenser in the grid circuit of the detector tube. Much depends upon the grid condenser and leak.

If you are troubled with distortion when the loud speaker is used, try the speaker on another set.

When your set is operating O. K. leave it alone.

When mounting a new variable condenser check up the template with the holes on the condenser. Paper has a habit of shrinking when it goes through the presses and is liable to set the holes off somewhat.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Shoe Eyelets Serve as Rotor Shaft Bearings

Shoe eyelets come in handy in radio work where a person builds his own sets. They make good bearings for shafts in variocoupler and variometer tubes. Two of them will make and connections on a piece of cardboard for a grid leak. Holes drilled in panels for showing the light from the tubes may be embellished with the use of eyelets.

Nearby Metal Spoils Loop

Directional loops are hampered in reception by metal structures or parts of buildings. The magnetic properties of nearby metal diminish receiving qualities of loop antennas.

Skilled and Unskilled

Skilled laborers are those regulars such training in a particular occupation as would involve material improvement in a transference to other occupations. Men laborers who do not have to serve an apprenticeship or learn a trade are unskilled laborers.

To Every Man His Part

We do not say that the truth may conquer, because it cannot but conquer. Its conquest is assured from the very foundation of the world. But we do say that we have a part in the great victory.—Julia Ward Howe.

LATEST NEWS OF NEW YORK STATE FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Prepared for This Paper by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, Ithaca, N. Y.

Referendum Proves Farmers Against Proposed Amendment

The proposed child labor amendment is strongly opposed by New York state farmers, a state-wide referendum completed recently by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation shows. The returns from the vote were reported by E. E. Leeb, president of the federation, at a hearing on the amendment held in Albany last week. The federation passed a resolution at its annual meeting in November opposing the proposed amendment but feeling is running so high on the matter that the officers of the state organization decided to make sure of the feeling of New York farmers before taking any strong stand on the matter.

An actual vote was taken by 13 county farm bureau associations, 2,261 farmers voting. Of this number 2,017 voted against the passage of the amendment and 244 for it. The returns by counties were as follows: Albany, 42 favor, 236 oppose; Chenango, 81 favor, 267 oppose; Chemung, 45 favor, 225 oppose; Clinton, 2 favor, 202 oppose; Greene, 4 favor, 65 oppose; Madison, 13 favor, 203 oppose; Orange, 22 favor, 116 oppose; Orleans, 14 favor, 150 oppose; Seneca, 5 favor, 8 oppose; Schuyler, none favor, 83 oppose; Ulster, 24 favor, 179 oppose; Westchester, 10 favor, 70 oppose; Yates, 2 favor, 93 oppose.

The following counties indicated opposition to the passage of the amendment taken without referendum was taken Dutchess, Nassau, Sullivan, Jefferson, Erie, Wyoming, Schoenectady, Chautauque, Lewis, St. Lawrence, Essex, Otsego, Monroe, Steuben. In each of these counties the attitude of farmers was tested at community meetings, at annual meetings, by vote of annually committees or by vote of farm bureau executive committees or advisory councils.

"Now that we are able to correctly reflect the real feeling of New York farmers on this important matter we will take a strong stand in opposition," declared Mr. Leeb in commenting on the referendum. "Farmers are not opposed to legislation which will prohibit the labor of little children in mills and factories, but they are strongly against any amendment to the constitution which will permit federal agents to interfere in the normal activities of farm boys and girls on the farm."

Mrs. Powell on Radio Paints Lives of Famous Women

"Famous Women" was the subject of a brilliant address broadcast by station WGY Schenectady on Feb. 23. The speaker was Mrs. G. Thomas Powell, Glenhead, L. I., president of the New York State Home Bureau federation. Her talk was part of the monthly radio program of the New York State Farm Bureau federation.

Mrs. Powell's famous women are the homemakers. "They are masters of many arts and sciences, they control the future of coming generations," she said. "A home, like a great nation, will pass into history by the men and women it has produced. This means children physically sound and fit, helped to become so by intelligent mothers who know food values, who have learned to value good health above beauty, who realize that a prize baby need not possess curling locks and lashes, but must be up to weight."

"Our famous women realize that obedience to law, respect for authority, must first be taught within the four walls of home. This is made emphatic today when laws multiply and respect for them decreases."

"Where can we find a woman winning higher laurels than the homemaker? By her thrift and industry, self-sacrifice, teaching of high ideals, and of honorable aims, by her upward glance that high character be placed above great possessions, she may help to win security for her country, for in high-minded men and women lies the strength of any nation."

Strivings Reports on Producers' Volume

B. L. Strivings, master of the State Orange and treasurer of the Producers' Commission association at East Buffalo, in a recent statement said that the producers' association is handling around $1,000,000 per month of stock. This large business is entirely on a cooperative basis.

An increasing number of New York state farmers are using the association to market their livestock and in purchasing their stores and feeders through the Kansas City branch of the Producers' association.

League Farmers Get Highest January Price

A gross pool price of $2.50 for January milk is announced by the Dairy-men's League Cooperative association. This is the highest January price in the history of the pool. The price is based on the statements of only deductions on the statements of the month are for expenses amounting to $140, which makes the net pool price and also the cash distributable $2.36. With the exception of one month, namely December, 1922, this is the highest cash distribution in the history of the pool.

Brown's Program Made Big Hit

One of the best programs ever given by WDBZ, the Boy Scouts' radio station in Kingston, was that given by Frank L. Brown, the local Willard battery man, on Wednesday evening. Over 300 telephone calls, all appreciative, were received, and the program was heard in Albany, Poughkeepsie, Saugerties and Massachusetts. A Massachusetts man visiting in Kingston, reported that he had been receiving the WDBZ program for several weeks.

Between the musical selections Mr. Nesslage made an entirely unlooked appeal for support of the Fair Grounds Association in its effort to continue baseball in Kingston. Listeners state that this was one of the finest clear cut and convincing statements they ever heard.

The instrumental and part of the vocal music was by Paul Zucca's orchestra and the program in full was given as announced several days ago in The Freeman.

Station WDBZ is now equipped with Willard batteries, through the generosity of Mr. Brown and his power and clarity have been greatly increased thereby.

Germany's Ruler Laid to Rest

Wife Swoons at Grave—Government Dignitaries Accompany Remains to Heidelberg—Crowds Watch Funeral Train Through Night.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Heidelberg, Germany, March 5.—Friedrich Ebert, first president of a republic that rose on the ruins of empire, was laid to rest today in the old university town where he spent his boyhood days.

Today's ceremony was the simple conclusion of Germany's tribute to the humble, Democratic leader, schooled only in the harness shop, the editorial room of a Socialist newspaper and in his own little inn, whose body yesterday was escorted with all the pomp of a state funeral through the gateway reserved in imperial days for the use of the Kaiser.

The strain of the burial today following the solemn ceremonies of state which Berlin accorded the president, was too great for Frau Ebert, plain woman of the people, who was his unfading comrade in the lean days of poverty and the trying years of power.

She swooned as the first shovelful of earth was placed on the coffin of her husband and would have fallen but for Chancellor Luther. The chancellor caught Frau Ebert as she fainted, then assisted her to her carriage.

Accompanied by the highest dignitaries of the German nation, from Chancellor Luther down, the body of President Ebert arrived at 9 o'clock this morning in this picturesque city, the seat of Germany's most famous university. Here in the narrow "pflaenke," Ebert was born 54 years ago, the son of a modest saddler.

From the famous old castle overlooking the Neckar Valley, the black, red and gold flag fluttered. Throughout the city these colors mingled with the flag of Ebert's home state—Baden.

At all the stations at which the funeral train halted during the night long huge silent crowds stood with bared heads in the darkness to bid their last farewell to the dead ruler.

For miles from the station, where the body arrived, the streets and public squares were black with tens of thousands of mourners.

At the moment the ceremony at the station started, all the church bells of Heidelberg began tolling.

One of the first wreaths placed on the casket at the station was one from the University of Heidelberg.

PAGEANT OF "KENMORE" WAS WELL RECEIVED
There was a large attendance at the chapel of the First Dutch Church on Wednesday evening to witness the historic pageant, "Kenmore," written by Mr. Marcus A. Weed and Mrs. Graham Hurd, and given in part by the members of Wiltwyck Chapter D. A. R.

The program was practically the same as when given at the Chapter House with the addition of a vocal solo, "O, Promise Me," sweetly sung by Miss Margaret Angle, accompanied by Mrs. Hilda Glendenning, and a decidedly modern solo dance, kindly very gracefully by Miss Fanny Keller.

Owing to illness of some of the original cast, several performers last evening took their parts in exceedingly short notice and gave a special mention for their generous eleventh-hour service. Miss Francella Anderson took the part of "Rose, the Maid," because of the sudden illness of Miss Dorothy MacFadden, while Ernest Smith took the part of George Washington.

The scenes were all very pretty and called forth much applause throughout the pageant. M. Helen Freer was the director and soloist of the pageant.

Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight star, is pictured giving Sammy Mandell, the Chicago lightweight, a few pointers. Mandell was given the popular decision over Sid Terris in their recent bout held in Madison Square garden.

Sherdel Is Great

Here is Bill Sherdel, left-handed pitcher for the St. Louis Cards. He looks like a game, gay, graceful player on the baseball stage, and he proved that he was one when he pitched that game against the Giants last September. The harder they hit him, the greater game he pitched that day. It might well be said that this was the greatest game of ball pitched during the 1924 season.

Sport Notes

Pavel Nurmi runs almost well enough to be a great boxer.

The tennis tourney at Wimbledon last summer yielded a net profit of $65,000.

Golf is an extraordinary game if you consider that its most fanatic devotees know less than nothing about it.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, who succeeds Johnny Dundee as king of the featherweights, came to America from Russia.

Mickey Silverman will manage the London club of the Michigan-Ontario League this summer. He formerly was with Toledo.

Knee pants, the distinctive feature of the present style of baseball uniform, were first introduced by the Cincinnati Reds in 1890.

Ole Newman, football and baseball star at Carnegie Tech, has been offered a contract with the Toledo club of the American association.

The National league used 44,224 baseballs last season. New York purchased the greatest number, 7,500, and Philadelphia the least, 3,450.

George Burns, former New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds outfielder, who was released by Cincinnati last year, has been signed by the Philadelphia National league team.

Percy Wendell, former football coach at Williams college, has signed a contract to coach Lehigh university for three years at $10,000 a year. He is allowed $6,000 for two assistants.

An ex-football player alleged in divorce court that his wife lost interest in him when she ascertained that he was not possessed of much wealth. Evidently, there was a mistake in signals.

The University of California has established a remarkable football record, having scored 1,355 points in 120 for its opponents in five years of unbeaten play. The Golden Bears have been tied several times.

Jede Ray, who won the Hunter mile race at the Boston athletic association games, has announced that he is anxious to retire from active amateur competition and would seek a position as a track and field coach.

The National Association of Football Leagues is composed of 21 leagues. There are more than 225 clubs represented in the league, with more than 200 players. The month's salaries aggregate $1,000,000.

Haughton Once Adjourned National League Meeting
There was a military spirit in Percy Haughton. Even in his private life he preferred to work to the minute. Once a meeting of the National league was being held. Sometimes National league meetings are prolonged. Haughton was not thoroughly conversant with National league methods.

A few minutes after 5:00 o'clock he rose and offered a motion for adjournment. "I have a dinner appointment at six o'clock," he blandly said, "and shall keep it." The humor of the thing struck one of the old-timers so heavily on his funny bone that he seconded the motion and demanded the question. It carried. "That," said the old-timer, "is the first time the National league ever adjourned in let one of the boys get out to dinner at six o'clock."

Use the FREEMAN advertising regularly and conservatively and results will surely follow.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 5.—Neither the speculative nor the commodity markets made much headway today against the reactionary conditions.

Traders appeared anxious to take profits and professionals threw large blocks of stock on the market in the effort to force recessions in prices of strategic stocks, forcing heavy declines.

The same tendencies were seen in the grain and cotton markets. Wheat failed to recover any large part of yesterday's heavy losses. Cotton selling was also more aggressive than the buying.

Call money opened at 3%, but funds were in abundance and the rate was marked down to 3 1/2 percent.

The underlying strength of the market was seen in the slowing up of activity while selling pressure was at its height. It is doubtful if any considerable volume of long stocks were dislodged from active accounts. Short covering in other sections of the market caused sharp advances in stocks like General Electric and American Can.

Baltimore and Ohio and Frisco common led a spurt in the railroad stocks in the fourth hour. The market buoyancy, though California Petroleum and General Petroleum were strong and steady throughout the session and Pan-American was aggressive.

Football Rules First Adopted Back in 1876
Football emerged from chaos in 1876. Prior to that year there was nothing to the game in this country. It was a mixture of the English association game and a prizefight.

In 1876 the first rules were formulated and the game began to assume a resemblance to the game as it was played before the open play and forward pass came into use. Particular attention was given to rule-making after Yale and Harvard played their first match. The rules used in that contest were the English Rugby as it was being played in England.

After that, through many modifications, the game became highly popular in all American colleges. The game as it is played today has reached its most attractive stage to the spectator.

The open play has placed football on a parity with baseball, hockey and polo; that is, the individual play can be discerned from the gallery. In the earlier stages of the pastime it was hard to see the play, and only when a player broke away into the open with the ball did the spectator enjoy a thrill.

Shower For Miss Bardes.
The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Winnet Pasberg, on Locust Road, Clintonsdale, was opened to about forty guests on Monday afternoon when Mrs. Pasberg and Miss Iradora Livingston were hostesses at a shower given for Miss Christine Bardes of Brooklyn, whose engagement to Parker Hull of Clintonsdale was announced at a dinner given at his parents' home on New Year's day. Shortly after the arrival of those invited, a pleasing program, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings and recitations was rendered. These were of both a serious and comic nature and appropriate to the occasion. Mrs. William Jenkins recited an original poem, relating to Miss Bardes, her love for country life and the purpose for which the ladies had gathered at the Pasberg home, which was particularly suited to the afternoon. At the close of the program, the guests were invited into the dining room where the table was piled with parcels ready to be unwrapped. As Miss Bardes entered she was showered with rose petals and not until then did she begin to understand that the affair was given as a shower for her. The surprise was so great that it was with difficulty that she regained her composure and began to open the large number of packages in which she was assisted by Mrs. Ralph Van Sicken. As the wrappings were opened with many handsome and useful articles consisting of glass, silver, linen, towels, aluminum ware, etc., were disclosed. As the gifts were opened the donors were presented to the prospective bride who thanked them appreciatively for their thought of her. Before the close of the afternoon, Mrs. Pasberg and Miss Livingston served dainty and delicious refreshments.

Best Detroit Pitching Staff

Ty Cobb Declares Present Tiger Pitching Staff Is Best Detroit Ever Knew—Capable Substitute For Every Position Including His Own Says Cobb.

(By Davis J. Walsh)

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Augusta, Ga., March 5.—Itank hereby through it may be to the old timers who held the late Bill Donovan, George Mullin, Killian, Willett and Summers in such high esteem. Ty Cobb came out on the flat of his feet today and declared the present Tiger pitching staff to be the best Detroit ever knew.

The tidings may prompt Detroit citizens to rush out into the night proclaiming the re-birth of liberty, justice and the right to run over the nearest traffic cop. Since 1909, a Detroit pitcher has been like the dodo—a species extinct long ago.

It has been the common impression that Mullin, Donovan, et al, took more than a passive part in the winning of three straight pennants between 1907 and 1909 but Cobb dissents.

"We won those pennants because we were a team of hitters," Cobb declared. "Donovan was a great pitcher; Mullin was well above the average. But you couldn't call two men a pitching staff. Our hitting carried the other pitchers."

"My present staff, Rip Collins, Earl Whitehill, George Daus, Ken Holloway, Sylvester Johnson, Herman Pillette, Tim Stoner and Ed Wells may not boast a Bill Donovan, but it certainly is superior to any staff Detroit has had in my 20 years with the club."

The great man then elaborated on his statement of yesterday to the effect that he would play in fewer than a hundred games this season. This decision, he intimated, was influenced as much by the belief that no man can keep going at top speed for a full season as by the fear that he himself is slipping.

"I have a capable substitute for every position and as soon as a regular begins to let down out comes," he said. "That goes for me too. Of course if I were younger and going the way I was some years ago I would be in there every day. But I know that I can't stand the pace and when I begin to feel it, some one else will be playing center field for Detroit."

"The whole club is built along those lines. I have two short stops, Taverne and Rigney. Fred Haney can relieve Jones at third base or O'Rourke at second. Johnny Neun stands ready to relieve Blue at first base. I have two good catchers, Bassler and Woodall and a half dozen outfielders."

Pressed for answer as to the identity of the man he thought capable of supplanting him, Cobb became evasive.

"Manush should have a great year," he remarked with the air of one changing the subject. "He went badly in 1924 but he was just finding himself."

It is no secret that Cobb is somewhat enamored of young Carlyle who hit .346 his first season in professional baseball.

NURMI SMASHES TWO NEW INDOOR RECORDS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 5.—Two new indoor running world records were on the books today, placed there by the incomparable Paavo Nurmi in the 100th Infantry games last night. The Finn smashed the marks for the mile and an eighth and two thousand yards runs, records he himself created since he came to this country. He topped 2:15 seconds off the time for the mile and an eighth, covering distance in 4:55. The 2,000 yard distance was negotiated in 4:59 3-5, one and a fifth seconds better than the old time.

Will Practice "Takraw" at New York University

Ba Yin, described as the "Babe Ruth of Bangkok," has convinced authorities at New York university that takraw, the national game of Siam, should be added to the American college's athletic curriculum. Professor Hathway, faculty director of athletics, after watching an exhibition staged by Siamese, announced that he would form a squad to practice the game.

The mighty Yin had as teammates in the demonstration Pia, Chin and Con. They produced a six-inch wicker ball, which was tossed from player to player, touching everything but hands in its flight. Hands must not be used in passing, but heads, feet, knees and necks are permissible. The team making the greater number of passes before the ball hits somebody's hands or the floor wins the match.

Equipment Expense of Gridiron Stars

It costs $25.07 for a University of Iowa football player to trot on the field for the initial practice and the remaining sports necessitate an expenditure of $30 per man. This covers the cost of but the first equipment. Track men come next in the list and baseball players are the cheapest of the major athletes with an initial expense of $28.40. Swimmers are the only group of men not requiring an expensive individual equipment.

COLLEGES SEE NEED OF WINNING SPORTS

Best Advertisements Institutions of Learning Can Possibly Have.

Winning athletic teams are the best advertisements that universities and colleges can have. No one realizes this more than the heads of the institutions of higher learning. So it is that boys who have excelled in athletics at high or preparatory school are much sought after by the colleges, says a letter in an exchange. And, for the same reason, the coaching profession has become a mighty profitable one.

Nowadays a coach knows he must produce a winning team if he is to retain his job or be offered another one at an even higher salary. That is the reason that each year witnesses a number of changes in the coaching personnel of the big educational institutions.

This is especially true in football, the leading college sport of the country.

This year there will be many such coaching changes. In some cases, successful coaches will leave their present posts because they have been offered better ones. In other instances the mentors have been asked to resign because they failed to get results.

Such teams as Columbia, Navy, Syracuse, Lehigh, Williams, New York university, Nebraska, and others will be under new head coaches when they start their preparations for next autumn's games.

Despite this demand for winning teams the days of the win at all cost have passed. Now the coach who plays the game on the square is the one who succeeds. The faculties want the men who urge their players to keep up their scholastic grades.

BOXING BOUTS MONDAY AT ELKS' SMOKER

Some interesting boxing bouts will be featured at the monthly smoker of Kingston Lodge of Elks at the club house, Fair street, on Monday evening of next week. There will also be a number of vaudeville acts, music and refreshments. It was expected that the well-known professional boxer, Dave Shade, would appear in an exhibition bout but the date for his coming has been changed until a later smoker. Shade who is an Elk, a member of the Bronx Elks, is well-known in Kingston.

Syracuse Has 21 Hard Games

On Its Schedule This Season—Has Good Infield, But Is Lacking in Pitchers and Catchers.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 5.—Faced with a schedule of twenty-one hard games—the most difficult program attempted in recent years by a Syracuse varsity baseball team—Coach Lew Carr will leave Syracuse for the South on April 8 with a squad of fifteen men, it was announced today. He will carry five infielders, five outfielders, three pitchers and two catchers. The party will go direct to Blacksburg, Va., where it will open its season's campaign on April 10 against Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The same team will be met on April 11, and then the Hill squad will go to Charlottesville, where the University of Virginia baseball nine will be met April 13 and 14. On the following day the Orange will return to Blacksburg for a return game with Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The return trip will be started on April 16, and the squad will be back in Syracuse ready for the opening game on April 21, with Niagara. Two games with Michigan in Archbold Stadium, on April 24 and 25, and the contest with the championship Holy Cross nine here on April 29, promise to give Coach Carr's charges a fine opportunity for an auspicious start before a home crowd. Although Coach Carr already is confident that his infield will be composed of Captain Lee Dougherty at first, Vic Hanson at second, Tommy Ringwood at third and Hank Greve at short, he is on the lookout for new material. He has several outfield candidates who show promise, and he expects to get a fair line on his candidates during the practice sessions of the coming week. Battery candidates are causing the greatest worry. No one has shown any marked pitching ability in the twirling sessions thus far, and, besides, from Bill Van Lengen, second-string pitcher last year, Carr sees little to hope for. The same is true in the catching department, where "Jiggs" Mahoney, understudy to Captain Jim Korwin last year, is the only available candidate. De Baum, freshman backstop of last year, may be eligible, but Carr fears that he will be lost through scholastic difficulties.

Fisher Again With Harvard

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Cambridge, Mass., March 5.—Harvard football followers were elated today at the announcement that Robert T. ("Bob") Fisher was to coach the football eleven another year. It was pointed out that "Bob" Fisher has turned out more all-American linemen than any other college coach in the United States. Crimson supporters hope that Major Charles Daly, who will be assistant coach, will develop some star backfield men.
